Phillips Oppenheim,2019-12-04 In Jeanne of the Marshes E Phillips Oppenheim weaves a captivating narrative set against the backdrop of the English marshlands The novel combines elements of intrigue romance and adventure showcasing Oppenheim s mastery in creating atmospheric tension through rich descriptive prose Employing a blend of strong character development and suspenseful plotting Oppenheim invites readers to explore themes of loyalty deception and the quest for personal identity within a captivating historical setting that reflects early 20th century societal norms and expectations Oppenheim often dubbed the Prince of Storytellers had a rich background as a writer of thrillers and adventure stories gaining popularity for his keen understanding of human nature and social dynamics His experiences and observations of the evolving English society during a time of rapid change undoubtedly influenced his work This novel reflects his ingrained interest in the complexities of personal relationships against a landscape that is as treacherous as the human heart fusing fact with fiction to create a compelling narrative tapestry Jeanne of the Marshes is a must read for those who appreciate intricately plotted stories rich in character and atmosphere It offers an engaging exploration of the human condition and serves as a testament to Oppenheim s prowess as a storyteller This timeless work will resonate with readers seeking both escapism and a deeper understanding of the subtleties of courage and sacrifice In this enriched edition we have carefully created added value for your reading experience A succinct Introduction situates the work s timeless appeal and themes The Synopsis outlines the central plot highlighting key developments without spoiling critical twists A detailed Historical Context immerses you in the era s events and influences that shaped the writing A thorough Analysis dissects symbols motifs and character arcs to unearth underlying meanings Reflection questions prompt you to engage personally with the work s messages connecting them to modern life Hand picked Memorable Quotes shine a spotlight on moments of literary brilliance Interactive footnotes clarify unusual references historical allusions and archaic phrases for an effortless more informed read Jeanne of the Marshes - Primary Source Edition Edward Phillips Oppenheim,2013-09 This is a reproduction of a book published before 1923 This book may have occasional imperfections such as missing or blurred pages poor pictures errant marks etc that were either part of the original artifact or were introduced by the scanning process We believe this work is culturally important and despite the imperfections have elected to bring it back into print as part of our continuing commitment to the preservation of printed works worldwide We appreciate your understanding of the imperfections in the preservation process and hope you enjoy this valuable book Jeanne of the Marshes Edward Phillips Oppenheim,2018-03-02 Charming and delightful in the extreme without a doubt it will be voted one of the best novels of the season We are delighted to publish this classic book as part of our extensive Classic Library collection Many of the books in our collection have been out of print for decades and therefore have not been accessible to the general public The aim of our publishing program is to facilitate rapid access to this vast reservoir of literature and our view is that this is a significant literary work which deserves to be brought back into print after many decades The contents of the vast majority of titles in the Classic Library have been scanned from the original works To ensure a high quality product each title has been meticulously hand curated by our staff Our philosophy has been guided by a desire to provide the reader with a book that is as close as possible to ownership of the original work We hope that you will enjoy this wonderful classic work and that for you it becomes an enriching experience Jeanne of the Marshes E Phillips Oppenheim,2020-12-29 The Princess opened her eyes at the sound of her maid s approach She turned her head impatiently toward the door Annette she said coldly did you misunderstand me Did I not say that I was on no account to be disturbed this afternoon Annette was the picture of despair Eyebrows and hands betrayed alike both her agitation of mind and her nationality Madame she said did I not say so to monsieur I begged him to call again I told him that madame was lying down with a bad headache and that it was as much as my place was worth to disturb her What did he answer Only this That it would be as much as my place was worth if I did not come up and tell you that he was here to see you on a very urgent matter Indeed madame he was very very impatient with me Of whom are you talking the Princess asked But of Major Forrest madame Annette declared It is he who waits below The Princess closed her eyes for a moment and then slowly opened them She stretched out her hand and from a table by her side took up a small gilt mirror Turn on the lights Annette she commanded The maid illuminated the darkened room The Princess gazed at herself in the mirror and reaching out again took a small powder puff from its case and gently dabbed her face Then she laid both mirror and powder puff back in their places You will tell monsieur she said that I am very unwell indeed but that since he is here and his business is urgent I will see him Turn out the lights Annette I am not fit to be seen And move my couch a little so Madame is only a little pale the maid said reassuringly That makes nothing These Englishwomen have all too much colour I go to tell monsieur

Jeanne of the Marshes E Phillips Oppenheim, 2020-04-09 The man obeyed in silence When he had made himself quite comfortable he raised her hand the one which was nearest to him to his lips and afterwards retained it in his own Forgive me if I seem unsympathetic Ena he said The fact is everything has been getting on my nerves for the last few days and my luck seems dead out She looked at him curiously She was past middle age and her face showed signs of the wear and tear of life But she still had fine eyes and the rejuvenating arts of Bond Street had done their best for her What is the matter Nigel she asked Have the cards been going against you He frowned and hesitated for a moment before replying Ena he said between us two there is an ancient bargain and that is that we should tell the truth to one another I will tell you what it is that is worrying me most I have suspected it for some time but this afternoon it was absolutely obvious There is a sort of feeling at the club I can't exactly describe it but I am conscious of it directly I come into the room For several days I have scarcely been able to get a rubber This afternoon when I cut in with Harewood and Mildmay and another fellow two of them made some sort of an excuse and went off I pretended not to notice it of course but there it was The thing was apparent and it is the very devil Again she looked at him closely There is nothing tangible she asked No complaint or scandal or anything of that sort He rejected the suggestion with scorn No he said I am not such an idiot as that All the same there is the feeling They don't care to play bridge with me There is only young Engleton who takes my part and so far as playing bridge for money is concerned he would be worth the whole lot put together if only I could get him away from them make up a little party somewhere and have him to myself for a week or two
