Looking at Men Anthea Callen, 2018-01-01 Beginning in 1800 Looking at Men explores how the modern male body was forged through the intimately linked professions of art and medicine which deployed muscular models and martial arts to renew the beau ideal This ideal of the virile body derived from the athletic perfection found in the classical male nude The study of human anatomy and dissection in both art and medicine underpinned a modern gladiatorial ideal its representations setting the parameters not just of normal virile masculinity but also its abject other Through the shared violence of human dissection and martial arts male artists and medics secured their professional privilege and authority on the bodies of roughs First and foremost visual this process has literary parallels in Frankenstein and Jekyll and Hyde While embodying signs of dominant power and signalling differences of race class gender and sexuality the virile masculine ideal contained its shadow
