

GENERAL DESCRIPTION

Axial piston variable displacement pumps, Series 20, are of swash plate construction with variable flow capability suitable for hydrostatic transmissions with closed circuit. The flow rate is proportional to the pump's driven speed displacement, which, in turn, is determined by the swash plate angle. The latter is infinitely adjustable between zero and maximum displacement. Flow direction is reversed by tilting the swash plate to the opposite side of the neutral or zero displacement position.

FEATURES

Axial piston variable displacement pumps, Series 20, are well-engineered and easy handle. The full-length shaft with a highly efficient tapered roller bearing arrangement offers a high loading capacity for external radial forces. Additional pumps can be built on. The hydro-mechanical servo displacement control maintains the selected swash plate position and hence pump displacement. Upon release of the control handle, the swash plate automatically returns to the null position and the flow becomes zero. High case pressures can be achieved without leakage even at the lowest temperatures by using suitable shaft seals. The servo valve arrangement offers the facility to incorporate function regulators and remote control systems. Axial piston units are designed for easy servicing, complete dismantling and disassembly can be carried out with standard hand tools, and all components or sub-assemblies are replaceable.

Figure 2:

Figure 2 shows schematically the function of hydrostatic transmission using an axial piston variable displacement pump and fixed displacement motor.
