

National Knowledge Commission

Report to the Nation

2006 - 2009

Knowledge is the foundation of a nation's progress. It is the engine of growth, the source of innovation, and the key to sustainable development. The National Knowledge Commission (NKC) was established in 2005 to study and recommend measures for the development of knowledge infrastructure and the promotion of knowledge-based growth in India. This report presents the findings and recommendations of the NKC over its three-year tenure.

The NKC has conducted extensive consultations with stakeholders across the country, including government officials, academia, industry, and civil society. It has also conducted numerous studies and commissioned research to understand the challenges and opportunities in the knowledge sector. The report is organized into several parts, each focusing on a specific area of knowledge infrastructure and its development.

The first part of the report discusses the overall vision and mission of the NKC. It outlines the key areas of focus, including knowledge infrastructure, human resources, and innovation. The second part of the report provides a detailed analysis of the current state of knowledge infrastructure in India. It identifies the strengths and weaknesses of the existing system and proposes measures to address the challenges.

The third part of the report focuses on the development of human resources. It discusses the importance of education and training in building a knowledge-based workforce. It also proposes measures to improve the quality of education and training, including the introduction of new technologies and the promotion of lifelong learning.

The fourth part of the report discusses the role of innovation in driving economic growth. It identifies the barriers to innovation and proposes measures to create a conducive environment for innovation. It also discusses the importance of intellectual property rights and the need for a strong legal framework to protect innovation.

The fifth part of the report discusses the role of knowledge infrastructure in promoting sustainable development. It identifies the challenges and opportunities in this area and proposes measures to address them. It also discusses the importance of knowledge infrastructure in building a resilient and sustainable economy.

The report concludes with a series of recommendations for the government and other stakeholders. These recommendations are designed to provide a clear roadmap for the development of knowledge infrastructure and the promotion of knowledge-based growth in India. The NKC believes that these measures are essential for India to achieve its goal of becoming a global leader in knowledge-based growth.
