Harrington, 2000-02-08 The process of fuel injection spray atomization and vaporization charge cooling mixture preparation and the control of in cylinder air motion are all being actively researched and this work is reviewed in detail and analyzed The new technologies such as high pressure common rail gasoline injection systems and swirl atomizing gasoline fuel injections are discussed in detail as these technologies along with computer control capabilities have enabled the current new examination of an old objective the direct injection stratified charge DISC gasoline engine The prior work on DISC engines that is relevant to current GDI engine development is also reviewed and discussed The fuel economy and emission data for actual engine configurations have been obtained and assembled for all of the available GDI literature and are reviewed and discussed in detail The types of GDI engines are arranged in four classifications of decreasing complexity and the advantages and disadvantages of each class are noted and explained Emphasis is placed upon consensus trends and conclusions that are evident when taken as a whole thus the GDI researcher is informed regarding the degree to which engine volumetric efficiency and compression ratio can be increased under optimized conditions and as to the extent to which unburned hydrocarbon UBHC NOx and particulate emissions can be minimized for specific combustion strategies The critical area of GDI fuel injector deposits and the associated effect on spray geometry and engine performance degradation are reviewed and important system guidelines for minimizing deposition rates and deposit effects are presented The capabilities and limitations of emission control techniques and after treatment hardware are reviewed in depth and a compilation and discussion of areas of consensus on attaining European Japanese and North American emission standards presented All known research prototype and production GDI engines worldwide are reviewed as to performance emissions and fuel economy advantages and for areas requiring further development The engine schematics control diagrams and specifications are compiled and the emission control strategies are illustrated and discussed The influence of lean NOx catalysts on the development of late injection stratified charge GDI engines is reviewed and the relative merits of lean burn homogeneous direct injection engines as an option requiring less control complexity are analyzed Japanese Technical Periodical Index ,1987 Flight ,1938 Japanese Technical Abstracts ,1987 Rudder Thomas Fleming Day, 1917

Bingham,1998 The frenzy of technological invention and improvement that accompanied each large scale conflict during the twentieth century has been one of the most important factors in driving the spectacular scientific advances made during the last hundred years The half way point of the century saw the horrors of the first truly global battle World War II At that time the piston aero engine was at its zenith and the world s airforces were almost entirely propeller driven It is a period that provides the most interesting study of these engines and the aircraft they powered because the rapid change to turbojets that occurred in the post war era saw the demise of the piston engine on almost all types of military aircraft and large airliners This book looks at the design and development of the most famous engines used by the combatants during this great air war Each type is studied and evaluated in historical perspective and many famous aircraft are illustrated to demonstrate installation and differing usage One Merlin makes a Spitfire two a Mosquito and four a Lancaster Engines made in America Russia and Germany could boast the same versatility and are described here in detail Book jacket Energy Research Abstracts ,1981-10 The Aeroplane ,1928
