Parades postcoloniales Lydie Moudileno, Frederick Cooper, 2006 Publi en anglais aux Cambridge University Press en 1996 cet ouvrage change notre perception de l'histoire africaine et impériale Son auteur Frederick Cooper professeur d'histoire africaine New York University a rassemblé un large chantillon d'archives en français et en anglais pour mener bien une authentique étude comparative des politiques coloniales vis-à-vis des enjeux du travail Des années trente où la question fut posée pour la première fois la fin des années cinquante où la décolonisation était bien entamée il y eut que le recrutement le contrôle et l'institutionnalisation des forces africaines aux prises avec le monde du travail Loin de se limiter aux questions du travail salarié les débats parmi les dirigeants coloniaux ouvraient la porte à une discussion plus large au sujet des modèles sociaux et économiques pour un nouveau colonialisme de progrès capables de formuler des défis aux régimes impériaux pendant et après la deuxième guerre mondiale L'auteur analyse les diverses conceptions des politiques coloniales liées au travailleur africain et montre comment syndicats et politiciens africains utilisent le nouveau vocabulaire des changements sociaux pour revendiquer des salaires et des bénéfices égaux et le partage du pouvoir Ceci contribua à convaincre le pouvoir colonial que leur projet d'après-guerre de construire une Afrique moderne l'intérieur de frontières coloniales était la fois financièrement et politiquement irréaliste et impossible À la fin d'une décennie d'intervention dans la complexité des sociétés africaines la France et la Grande Bretagne se retirèrent en arguant qu'elles avaient rendu possible pour les Africains l'organisation du travail salarié et de la vie citadine l'image des sociétés industrielles En revanche elles se défaisaient des conséquences de leurs politiques sur les nouvelles lites africaines Elles laissent sans réponse la question de savoir jusqu'où ces récentes politiques sociales correspondaient ou non au vœu des travailleurs et de leurs familles Elles ne se prononcent pas sur la marge de manœuvre des gouvernements ou des mouvements sociaux africains quant à leurs manières propres de réorganiser le travail la famille et la vie en société

The Collected Edition of Roger Dorsinville's Postcolonial Literary Criticism in Africa: 1982-1986 Roger Dorsinville, 2003 The contribution of this collection to scholarship is fourfold it contributes to the expansion of knowledge about the African continent through a critical response to its many forms of representation by writers outside as well as inside Africa the range of writings provides intertextual evidence supportive of Dorsinville's own complex representation of Africa in his fiction and memoirs it is a documented record of a broad paradigm concerned with a postcolonial representation of the dialectic of home and exile memory and identity and selfhood and otherness and it provides a fascinating display of a postcolonial writer's intellectual journey enlivened by his use of voice in the African tradition of oral exchange whereby he positions himself as the one speaking to and for the many The volumes follow the original chronology of the publication of the individual texts The contents range widely from books on or by many African and Caribbean writers as well as Doris Lessing David Halberstam Idi Amin and Muhammad Ali
