Journal of the Marine Biological Association of the United Kingdom Marine Biological Association of the United Kingdom, 1918 Francois Peron Edward Duyker, 2016-06-28 In 1800 Francois Peron an ambitious young medical student not long released from the French revolutionary army gained a place as an assistant zoologist on Nicolas Baudin's expedition to Australian waters As his colleagues either deserted or died he would rise rapidly within the expedition's ranks and even write its official account In doing so Peron would seek to destroy Baudin's posthumous reputation The expedition was famously marked by the vexed relationship between Peron and Baudin but Peron's work as a man of science profoundly enhanced the achievements of the expedition he seized valuable opportunities to pioneer zoological oceanographic and ethnographic studies and as an ecological observer was remarkably prescient Edward Duyker's meticulously researched biography of Peron takes readers on an engaging and wide ranging journey from the heart of pre-revolutionary rural France to the bitter fighting on the Rhineland front in 1793-94 to the late eighteenth century Paris medical school to landfalls in the Atlantic and the Indian Oceans to the little known shores of Van Diemen's Land and New Holland and back into the very heart of Napoleon's Empire This is both a balanced assessment of the difficult relationship between Peron and Baudin and an analysis of the conduct of science during some of the most turbulent years in French history Les Animaux marins -

S. Rudwick, 2008-11-15 In 1650 Archbishop James Ussher of Armagh joined the long running theological debate on the age of the earth by famously announcing that creation had occurred on October 23 4004 B C Although widely challenged during the Enlightenment this belief in a six thousand year old planet was only laid to rest during a revolution of discovery in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries In this relatively brief period geologists reconstructed the immensely long history of the earth and the relatively recent arrival of human life Highlighting a discovery that radically altered existing perceptions of a human's place in the universe as much as the theories of Copernicus Darwin and Freud did Bursting the Limits of Time is a herculean effort by one of the world's foremost experts on the history of geology and paleontology to sketch this historicization of the natural world in the age of revolution Addressing this intellectual revolution for the first time Rudwick examines the ideas and practices of earth scientists throughout the Western world to show how the story of what we now call deep time was pieced together He explores who was responsible for the discovery of the earth's history refutes the concept of a rift between science and religion in dating the earth and details how the study of the history of the earth helped define a new branch of science called geology Rooting his analysis in a detailed study of primary sources Rudwick emphasizes the lasting importance of field and museum based research of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries Bursting the Limits of Time the culmination of more than three decades of research is the first detailed account of this monumental phase in the history of science Smell, taste, and allied senses in the vertebrates George Howard Parker,1922 OEuvres d'Aristote Aristotle,1887 Zoologischer Jahresbericht ,1884 *Œuvres (tr. par J.
