ENGINE FUEL SYSTEM

The carburetor is the device that mixes the fuel and air in the proper proportions for the engine to burn. It is located between the fuel tank and the engine. The carburetor has two main parts: the float valve and the jets. The float valve controls the amount of fuel that enters the carburetor, and the jets control the amount of fuel that is sprayed into the cylinders. The jets are located at the bottom of the carburetor, and they spray the fuel into the cylinders as the engine runs.

The fuel pump is the device that moves the fuel from the tank to the carburetor. It is located between the fuel tank and the carburetor. The fuel pump has two main parts: the pump and the filter. The pump moves the fuel from the tank to the filter, and the filter removes any dirt or debris from the fuel before it enters the carburetor.

The fuel line is the pipe that carries the fuel from the pump to the carburetor. It is located between the pump and the carburetor. The fuel line has two main parts: the line and the filter. The line carries the fuel from the pump to the filter, and the filter removes any dirt or debris from the fuel before it enters the carburetor.
