

Abstract: The historical process of modernization and economic growth requires the development of a system of education. This paper examines the role of the state in the development of education in Latin America. The state has played a central role in the development of education in Latin America, and this role has been shaped by a variety of factors, including the state's economic and political power, the state's ideology, and the state's relationship with the private sector. The paper argues that the state's role in education has been crucial in the development of modernization and economic growth in Latin America.
