Caribbean and Quebec Studies Family and the Female Life Course George Alter, 1988 The tension between women's workplace opportunity and family obligation is not exclusively a phenomenon of the 1980s as George Alter makes abundantly clear in this study. His close investigation of women's lives in a nineteenth century European industrial city advances our knowledge in several areas of social history, historical demography and life course studies. It is the first monograph to apply event history analysis to the study of family history. In doing so it moves beyond the static categories of traditional household studies to a dynamic view of the influence of the family on the life course decisions of individuals. In contrast to most previous historical studies of the family, this work focuses on the dynamic aspects of life course transitions: employment, marriage, household formation, childbearing, rather than the structure of households. In doing so, attention is shifted from the household as a decision making unit to the role of family obligations and resources in the decisions of individuals. Thus the family is viewed from the inside out through its effects on individual actors. Alter's work adds new insights to our understanding of the impact of industrialization on family structure and functioning, about women's work and labor force attachment and about the ways in which a life course perspective can help to resolve controversies in the approach to family and household dynamics. His rich interpretations not only help to reconstruct the past but place some current social issues into historical perspective: illegitimacy, nuclear family patterns and women's dual family work roles among others.

To Honor René Girard René Girard, 1986 "Brazil," J. C. Oakenfull, 1922 Rewriting Cathy Jellenik, 2007 Although the storytelling of any time rewrites itself, rewriting became a primary concern in the literature of the twentieth century, an era characterized as having quoted, reenacted, cannibalized, revised, redone, refurbished and outright plagiarized the texts of earlier times. The modern obsession with literary reiteration manifests itself in a rather unique way in the narratives of Marguerite Duras, Annie Ernaux and Marie Redonnet. These authors systematically and repeatedly rewrite their own texts and in so doing give evidence of three of the more salient aspects of twentieth century French literature: a trend toward the representation of multifaceted selves, a desire to reevaluate the literary paradigm and an acute concern for the unreliability of language. This book argues that the rewriting performed by Duras, Ernaux and Redonnet moves beyond the tacit rewriting that occurs in any text toward a renovation of various features of the literary arena within which they circulate. Cathy Jellenik argues that all writing contains rewriting, an argument grounded in the theoretical apparatuses of Saussure, Bakhtin, Benveniste, Barthes, Kristeva and Derrida. She then examines and interrogates the ways in which Duras, Ernaux and Redonnet use rewriting to question and rethink the literary traditions they inherit. Jellenik suggests that the rewriting projects of Duras, Ernaux and Redonnet promise to lead them and their readers toward the creation of a new literary aesthetic capable of responding to the questions of our times.

Confrontations Kathryn M. Grossman, 2001 The result of interdisciplinary collaboration rarely undertaken in such a systematic manner, Confrontations brings together literary critics, historians and art historians to reflect on a cluster of themes inspired by the commemoration of the centenary of the Dreyfus Affair. From literary expressions of revolt in all its excess and nuance to the complexities of political confrontations illuminated by analyses of J Accuse this book explores the tensions and dissent kindled throughout the century by rhetorical artistic and political audaciousness These essays invite the reconsideration of diverse forms of opposition repression and resistance from the most blatant to the most subtle as expressed through a variety of objects word act and image become political gestures just as politics is inspired by artistic and literary creation After examining diverse forms of textual negotiation the book explores acts of defiance and concludes with a discussion of a range of polemics including but not limited to the Dreyfus Affair This volume represents a reference source rich in new perspectives on the emblematic controversies of the nineteenth century literary artistic social and political
