Life Science Hominid Evolution Caps:

Evolution Education Around the Globe Hasan Deniz, Lisa A. Borgerding, 2018-06-21 This edited book provides a global view on evolution education. It describes the state of evolution education in different countries that are representative of geographical regions around the globe such as Eastern Europe, Western Europe, North Africa, South Africa, North America, South America, Middle East, Far East, South East Asia, Australia, and New Zealand. Studies in evolution education literature can be divided into three main categories: a) understanding the interrelationships among cognitive, affective, epistemological, and religious factors that are related to people's views about evolution; b) designing/implementing/evaluating evolution education curriculum that reflects contemporary evolution understanding; and c) reducing antievolutionary attitudes. This volume systematically summarizes the evolution education literature across these three categories for each country or geographical region. The individual chapters thus include common elements that facilitate a cross-cultural meta-analysis. Written for a primarily academic audience, this book provides a much-needed common background for future evolution education research across the globe. Literature and the Work of Universality Alice Duhan, Stefan Helgesson, Christina Kullberg, Paul Tenngart, 2024-07-22. In an age of accelerating ecological crises, global inequalities and democratic fragility, it has become crucial to achieve renewed articulations of human commonality. With anchorage in critical theory as well as world literary studies, this volume approaches literature and modes of literary thinking as a key resource for such a task. Universality is understood here not as an established universalism but as a horizon towards which intellectual inquiry and literary practices orient themselves. In the field of world literature, there is by now a wide repertoire of epistemological resources through which claims to universality can be both questioned and reconfigured. If at one end of the spectrum world literature confronts us with the spectre of homogenisation and the commodification of difference under a regime of global capitalism, at another end renewed forms of philological, anthropological and ecological attentiveness to the particulars of languages and texts within the crucible of connected histories allow for defamiliarising perspectives both on received historical narratives and aesthetic practices. Vernacularity emerges here as a central point of reference for constructing the universal from within the particular, the idiomatic and the experiences of social subordination or complicity.

Human Roots Lawrence Barham, Kate Robson-Brown, 2001. Sixteen papers taken from a Human Roots meeting held in Bristol in 2000 that focused on the question of how different were humans and human behaviour in Africa and the Far East during the Middle Pleistocene. The contributors draw on evidence from recent archaeological fieldwork and represent different schools of thought concerning the Out of Africa or Multi-Regional origins of man. Among the regions or countries discussed are southern central and eastern Africa, China, the Yangtze River, Australasia and India.

Human Evolution Joseph Benjamin Birdsell, 1975.

Educational Technology and Pedagogic Encounters Yusef Waghid, 2016-07-15. This book looks at some of the underlying theories of educational technology, means and ways in which this technology is guided in practice, ends. The authors are intent on producing ends that prepare students to undertake new analyses and evaluations that can result in new possibilities for democratic action. Emphasis is on their understanding of and position within educational technology as opposed to using or applying educational technology. The work is not written from the point of view that their embeddedness within educational technology has a utilitarian end in mind but rather that their situatedness within educational technology, a practice in itself, leaves open possibilities for new ways of understanding democratic education. This book is organised into six interrelated themes that work towards the cultivation of educational technology as a human practice which guides pedagogic encounters on the basis of taking risks in relation to which the unexpected/unimaginable is always possible.
