Representation Andrea d'Avella, Martin Giese, Yuri P Ivanenko, Thomas Schack, Tamar Flash, 2016-04-21 Mastering a rich repertoire of motor behaviors as humans and other animals do is a surprising and still poorly understood outcome of evolution development and learning Many degrees of freedom non linear dynamics and sensory delays provide formidable challenges for controlling even simple actions Modularity as a functional element both structural and computational of a control architecture might be the key organizational principle that the central nervous system employs for achieving versatility and adaptability in motor control Recent investigations of muscle synergies motor primitives compositionality basic action concepts and related work in machine learning have contributed to advance at different levels our understanding of the modular architecture underlying rich motor behaviors However the existence and nature of the modules in the control architecture is far from settled For instance regularity and low dimensionality in the motor output are often taken as an indication of modularity but could they simply be a byproduct of optimization and task constraints Moreover what are the relationships between modules at different levels such as muscle synergies kinematic invariants and basic action concepts One important reason for the new interest in understanding modularity in motor control from different viewpoints is the impressive development in cognitive robotics In comparison to animals and humans the motor skills of today's best robots are limited and inflexible However robot technology is maturing to the point at which it can start approximating a reasonable spectrum of isolated perceptual cognitive and motor capabilities These advances allow researchers to explore how these motor sensory and cognitive functions might be integrated into meaningful architectures and to test their functional limits. Such systems provide a new test bed to explore different concepts of modularity and to address the interaction between motor and cognitive processes experimentally. Thus the goal of this Research Topic is to review, compare and debate theoretical and experimental investigations of the modular organization of the motor control system at different levels. By bringing together researchers seeking to understand the building blocks for coordinating many muscles for planning endpoint and joint trajectories and for representing motor and behavioral actions in memory, we aim at promoting new interactions between often disconnected research areas and approaches and at providing a broad perspective on the idea of modularity in motor control. We welcome original research, methodological, theoretical, review and perspective contributions from behavioral system and computational motor neuroscience, research, cognitive psychology and cognitive robotics.

Space Insurance: International Legal Aspects Katarzyna Malinowska, 2017-03-15. Insurance related to outer space activities has been around since the 1960s but has become vastly more significant with the increased commercial use of satellites. This book focuses on the legal aspects of space insurance in the contractual context, analysing space risk as well as the insurance terms used on the market. It offers the first in-depth coverage, both practical and theoretical, of space insurance from an international law perspective. Attending throughout to the important and problematic distinction between the space segment upstream and ground segment downstream in space law, this book deals comprehensively with such issues and topics as the following: the main hazards relating to space activities; the impact of new space technologies on the level of risk and insurance; the differing types of risks attributable to various entities in the context of insurable interest; aspects of the space risk allocation regimes and risk assessment; the impact of the five space treaties: the Outer Space Treaty, the Liability Convention, the Rescue Agreement, the Registration Convention and the Moon Agreement; on the subject and scope of insurance coverage; the advent of suborbital flight, commercial human space flight and space tourism in the context of emerging insurance risks; the problem of space debris; contractual aspects of space activities affecting the space insurance risks; basic notions such as outer space, space object in the context of space activities and related insurance coverage; basic insurance principles and their operation in the space insurance and the adjustment of losses and the settlement of disputes in space insurance. The author emphasises the need to understand the various insurance risks facing particular types of commercial space activities, including pre-launch, launch, transportation, spaceflight, satellite communications, satellite navigation, satellite remote sensing and space station operation. Satellites are increasingly a vital part of many daily activities of contemporary society and the Earth's orbit is becoming ever more crowded, heightening

the risks of collision damage and claims This thoroughly researched book will therefore be extremely useful to lawyers policymakers and academics tasked with defining the scope of insurance coverage that accurately mirrors technological contractual and legal reality Its practical aspect will be of extraordinary value to insurance lawyers underwriters and brokers
