Reconstruction Bureau, 1929      Troubled Legacies Michel Feith, Claudine Raynaud, 2015-09-18 What is being passed on The questions of heritage and inheritance are crucial to American minority literatures Some inheritances are claimed some are imposed and become stifling others still are impossible like the memories of oppression or alienation Heritage is not only patrimony however it is also a process in a state of constant reconfiguration The body its semiotics its genealogy its pressure points figures prominently as inevitable referent for the minority racial ethnic subject the performance and the writing of difference This collection of essays analyzes contemporary novels from major African American writers such as Gayl Jones Phyllis Alesia Perry Percival Everett John Edgar Wideman and Colson Whitehead and ethnic American novelists like Jeffrey Eugenides Philip Roth Gish Jen and Sergio Troncoso It also includes the study of a painting by African American artist Robert Colescott The first section of the book examines the inscription of African American writers relation to the nation s past the trauma of slavery the burden of foundational discourses or the legacy of the classical philosophical canon The second part of the text is an assessment of the postmodern aesthetics of contemporary black fiction in the construction of history unveiling the modalities of the palimpsest fragmentation intermediality mises en abyme in a complex grammar of haunting and denial Gathering essays on Greek American Jewish American Chinese American and Mexican American fiction the final section delineates new conceptions of ethnicity based on fluidity hybridity and performativity Cross ethnic experimentations in super diversity according to which identities become optional an array of choices rather than forced belonging seem to be pointing the way to the next stage that of a post racial post ethnic society Yet the conjugated strictures of race and class still limit these choices to a significant degree and the works discussed in this volume often playfully or sarcastically question the validity of the post They ultimately ask who shall inherit America      La Grande catastrophe... Léon Rubinstein, 1960

Report of the Third International Congress of Women, Vienna, July 10-17, 1921 Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. Congress, 1921      We Get Nothing from Fishing Mambo Nyamnjoh, 2010-05-15 The world is regularly confronted on television and in other mass media with dramatic images of African boat migrants Seemingly desperate these Africans most of them males are willing to risk a perilous journey at sea hoping for a better life in Europe And even worse hundreds more are believed to die each year swallowed up anonymously by the choppy waters off Africas coast This book focuses on fishermen who have played a pivotal role in boat migration from Senegal to Spains Canary Islands advancing various reasons for the fishermens prominent role Besides their long history of migration their proven experience with navigating their familys push and investment their perceptions and ideologies about Europe there is also their growing marginalization as a result of the deepening crisis in the Senegalese fishing sector and the inadequate policies of the Senegalese government that prevents them from having good prospects of improving their standards of living The book provides deep insights into the meaning of boat migration and on the effects of success or failure on the migrants and their families It goes beyond the usual economic explanations to convincingly situate boat migration within the long standing West African culture of migration and highlight the significance of socio cultural and political factors Among the fascinating findings are the perception of migration as status enhancing and a rite de passage in the Senegalese fishing communities and the profound roles of the extended family social networks and above all religion especially the widespread influence of the marabout The importance of information and communication technologies in sustaining transnational networks is equally highlighted
