

About the report

This global study, conducted by the Economist Intelligence Unit (EIU) and sponsored by Palo Alto Networks, sheds light on the ways business leaders are dealing with the increasing volume of threats they face from insecurities that arise because of disruption beyond their corporate borders.

In November 2014, the EIU surveyed 150 board members and C-suite executives in a wide variety of functional roles, from business development to operations to strategy; about half the respondents work in companies with global annual revenues exceeding $500m.

To complement the survey, the report draws on detailed desk research and in-depth interviews with the following senior executives and specialists (listed alphabetically by organisation):

- Kelly Black, managing director, Accenture Security
- Matthew Devost, co-founder, FusionX LLC; managing director, Accenture
- Travis Diering, chief security officer, chief information security officer, Barclays Plc

- Graeme Newman, chief innovation officer, CFC Underwriting Ltd.
- Henry Shembob, chief security officer, Cognizant Technology Solutions
- Arvind Narthasaram, co-founder and CEO, Cyence
- Kevin Hyams, head of the Governance, Risk and Compliance group at Friedman LLP
- Robert Cates, chief information security officer, GSK Group
- Mohamed Alkady, founder and president, Hart Inc.
- Robert Anderson, head of the cyber security practice, Navigant Consulting Inc.

We would like to thank all interviewees for their time and insight. None of the experts interviewed for this report received financial compensation for participating in the interview programme. The report was written by Robert Diering and edited by Rebecca Upton.

The EIU bears sole responsibility for the content of this report. The findings do not necessarily reflect the views of the sponsor ■
