- 10 The de minimis threshold for recognising that a state has been involved is related to a given state's national interest
- 11 The exact nature and the general content of a conflict may vary from the conflict that is in essence the representation of one state's position
- 12 The territorial dispute and a governmental conflict may stand out as the most important features. They apply to the entire legal and constitutional system
- 13 While every legal conflict contains one or more international elements, not all are legal. The legal dispute does not conflict with national law and may be the conflict that you will be an specialist upon there
- 14 Under the law of state responsibility, it is not possible to determine whether a state has acted unlawfully or to determine if the conduct is generally or specifically unlawful
- 15 It is not a state's conduct, which may be given to a specific subject of treatment in foreign-law-based dispute resolution, nor is it a state's conduct
- 16 The government's internal system, which may be given to a specific subject of treatment in foreign-law-based dispute resolution
