Abstract. Handing on is a metaphorical use of handing which means that when we hand something over, we hand on the culture or tradition that's ours. We investigate all those cultural objects containing some knowledge or key values we regularly use publicly in public life.

1. The first step in the process of the development of the new curriculum is the identification of the needs of the community. This is done through a series of consultations with the community members, including the parents, teachers, and the local leaders. The purpose of these consultations is to gather information about the current state of the community and the challenges it faces. This information is then used to develop a list of priorities for the new curriculum.

2. The second step is the selection of the content for the curriculum. This is done by a committee of experts, including the teachers, the parents, and the local leaders. The committee reviews the list of priorities and selects the content that will be most relevant and useful for the community. The content is then organized into a series of modules, each covering a specific topic.

3. The third step is the development of the teaching materials. This is done by the teachers, who are given the content and asked to develop their own materials. The materials are then reviewed by the committee to ensure that they are of high quality and meet the needs of the community.

4. The fourth step is the implementation of the curriculum. This is done by the teachers, who are given the materials and asked to teach the curriculum to the students. The implementation is monitored by the committee to ensure that it is going well and that the students are learning.

5. The fifth step is the evaluation of the curriculum. This is done by the committee, who review the results of the implementation and make any necessary adjustments. The evaluation is done at the end of the first year of implementation.

6. The sixth step is the revision of the curriculum. This is done by the committee, who review the results of the evaluation and make any necessary changes to the curriculum. The revised curriculum is then implemented in the second year.

7. The seventh step is the final evaluation of the curriculum. This is done by the committee, who review the results of the second year of implementation and make any necessary adjustments. The final evaluation is done at the end of the second year.

8. The eighth step is the dissemination of the curriculum. This is done by the committee, who distribute the curriculum materials to the teachers and the parents. The dissemination is done through a series of meetings and workshops.

9. The ninth step is the monitoring and evaluation of the curriculum. This is done by the committee, who monitor the implementation of the curriculum and evaluate its effectiveness. The monitoring and evaluation is done through a series of visits and reports.

10. The tenth step is the final report of the curriculum. This is done by the committee, who write a report on the results of the curriculum development and implementation. The report is then distributed to the community members.
