2 Lightning and ESD Protection

Before mounting the EAP, you should consider lightning and ESD protection to ensure safety.

Proper grounding is a critical requirement for system devices. To reduce the damage of lightning lightning and ESD strikes, connect the grounding terminal to grounding facilities using a proper grounding wire which should meet the local installation requirements. You need to secure the grounding wire to the grounding terminal with the screw.

3 Hardware Installation

Mount the EAP

The EAP can be pole-mounted or wall-mounted. Follow the steps below for the hardware installation.

Option 1: Pole Mounting

Step 1: Load the end of the cable mounting strap through the back of the EAP.

Step 2: Position the EAP and enter the cable mounting strap around the pole. Feed the strap through the screw-hole and tighten the strap until the EAP is secure.

Option 2: Wall Mounting

Step 1: Place the mounting bracket for the EAP in the right position. Mark the positions for the screws.

Step 2: Mount the plastic wall anchors into the 4 screw holes. Align the bracket for the EAP to the plastic wall anchors and insert the wall-feeding bracket into the anchors through the bracket for the EAP.

Step 3: Align the mounting plate on the back of the EAP with the end of the mounting bracket for the EAP. Push and slide the EAP downwards until it meets the plate.

Connect the Cable

Note: It is recommended that you read the EAP user manual and watch the installation video. If you have any trouble in the process, please follow the instructions below step by step.

- It is recommended that you read the EAP user manual and watch the installation video.

MEMS Accelerometers Mahmoud Rasras, Ibrahim (Abe) M. Elfadel, Ha Duong Ngo, 2019-05-27 Micro electro mechanical system MEMS devices are widely used for inertia pressure and ultrasound sensing applications Research on integrated MEMS technology has undergone extensive development driven by the requirements of a compact footprint low cost and increased functionality Accelerometers are among the most widely used sensors implemented in MEMS technology MEMS accelerometers are showing a growing presence in almost all industries ranging from automotive to medical A traditional MEMS accelerometer employs a proof mass suspended to springs which displaces in response to an external acceleration A single proof mass can be used for one or multi axis sensing A variety of transduction mechanisms have been used to detect the displacement They include capacitive piezoelectric thermal tunneling and optical mechanisms Capacitive accelerometers are widely used due to their DC measurement interface thermal stability reliability and low cost However they are sensitive to electromagnetic field interferences and have poor performance for high end applications e.g. precise attitude control for the satellite Over the past three decades steady progress has been made in the area of optical accelerometers for high performance and high sensitivity applications but several challenges are still to be tackled by researchers and engineers to fully realize opto mechanical accelerometers such as chip scale integration scaling low bandwidth etc This Special Issue on MEMS Accelerometers seeks to highlight research papers short communications and review articles that focus on Novel designs fabrication platforms characterization optimization and modeling of MEMS accelerometers Alternative transduction techniques with special emphasis on opto mechanical sensing Novel applications employing MEMS accelerometers for consumer electronics industries medicine entertainment navigation etc Multi physics design tools and methodologies including MEMS electronics co design Novel accelerometer technologies and 9DoF IMU integration Multi accelerometer platforms and their data fusion
