The Positive Psychology of Personal Factors Dana S. Dunn, Michael L.

Wehmeyer, 2022-01-17 Historically interventions designed to impact the lives of disabled people were predicated upon deficits based models of disability This began to change with the introduction of World Health Organization WHO frameworks particularly the International Classification of Function ICF that emphasized that disability could only be understood in the context of interactions among health environmental factors and personal factors and by examining the impact of such factors on a person's activities and participation The ICF identified personal factors as among the elements of a social ecological model of disability but did not provide an extensive taxonomy of what constitutes such factors The Positive Psychology of Personal Factors examines personal factors that come from the field of positive psychology and as such to begin to identify and build strengths based approaches to promoting the full participation dignity and well being of disabled people

On the Self-Regulation of Behavior Charles S. Carver, Michael F.

Scheier, 2001-05-07 This book presents a thorough overview of a model of human functioning based on the idea that behavior is goal directed and regulated by feedback control processes. It describes feedback processes and their application to behavior, considers goals and the idea that goals are organized hierarchically, examines affect as deriving from a different kind of feedback process, and analyzes how success expectancies influence whether people keep trying to attain goals or disengage. Later sections consider a series of emerging themes including dynamic systems as a model for shifting among goals, catastrophe theory as a model for persistence, and the question of whether behavior is controlled or instead emerges. Three chapters consider the implications of these various ideas for understanding maladaptive behavior, and the closing chapter asks whether goals are a necessity of life. Throughout, theory is presented in the context of diverse issues that link the theory to other literatures.

Social Psychology of Health

Urmi Nanda Biswas, 2014-01-01

The idea of the book germinated in the symposium on Social Psychology of Health Issues and Concerns of India which was a part of XX Annual Convention of the National Academy of Psychology NAOP India organized in Jawaharlal Nehru University in December 2011. Few papers in this book were earlier presented in the conference and few invited articles are contributed by experts in this nascent but growing sub field of enquiry within social psychology. The chapters included in this book aim to propagate that large amount of the burden of disease can be understood as a product of societal factors which pushes people towards health averse behaviour. The chapters emphasize the need for understanding of disease and health care in Indian traditional system, well being of women in Indian society and the effectiveness of community health care systems. The book also covers various psycho social approaches to handle HIV AIDS pandemic in India and highlights factors that could make social marketing effective for public health care programmes and services. In addition, the book attempts to discuss the psycho social issues of care giving, suicide etc in Indian society. The content of the book will be helpful as supplementary reading for various courses on health psychology taught at undergraduate and postgraduate level in the colleges and universities across the country. The issues and concerns shared in the book may interest the health care practitioners and policy makers to think differently and rediscover the importance of social psychological parameters in effective delivery of health services.
