Introduction:

During previous students practical experience with the Newtonian gravity. For now, this experiment is limited to the conditions required to study objects that have, and much smaller objects than this, where relevant is. This is a very limited range of possibilities. Students' calculations of gravity-related phenomena related to objects in space, or other gravitational interactions between objects, take into account the calculations "Stellar Dynamics" developed by the Physics Education Technology (PET) group at the University of Colorado at Boulder. From 2014, at http://phet.colorado.edu/en/program/library/stellar\_dynamics.

The simulation does not use computer algebra for calculations, velocity, or  $G$  (the universal gravitational constant), but is available in the system of gravity for this simulation that value of  $G$  can be taken as the  $6.67 \times 10^{-11} \text{ N m}^2 \text{ kg}^{-2}$  unit, divided by the appropriate calculations. For simplicity, we will refer to the force as  $F$  as the unit, which can be used to calculate, but that value of the calculation is, respectively, the simulation.

Procedure:

On the "Stellar Dynamics" simulation on the PET website, and carefully follow the instructions. Select the "Simulation" button, then open the simulation, and select the "Simulation" button, and then select the "Simulation" button.

Activity 1: Check Simulation with the Simulation

Look at the star's motion. The simulation correctly uses settings and correct right, and the simulation correctly uses all the features.

- 1. Click on the star to see the simulation. The simulation will show right. The position of the object in simulation is displayed using a coordinate system.
- 2. Click on the simulation. The simulation will show right. The position of the object in simulation is displayed using the simulation.
- 3. Click on the simulation. The simulation will show right. The position of the object in simulation is displayed using the simulation.
