Handbook of Evidence-Based Treatment Manuals for Children and Adolescents Craig Winston LeCroy, 2008-04-18 With the advance of evidence based practice has come the publication of numerous dense volumes reviewing the theoretical and empirical components of child and adolescent treatment There are also a variety of detailed treatment manuals that describe the step by step procedures to guide ongoing research and practice The second edition of Craig Winston LeCroy's Handbook of Evidence Based Child and Adolescent Treatment Manuals is a forceful combination of the two approaches as he gathers fifteen varied treatment manuals and brief summaries of the research supporting each to ensure that practitioners will truly understand how to implement the treatments they are using. A completely revised and expanded edition of the handbook's first edition, this is an essential guide to some of the best programs for helping children and teens. Each chapter begins with an explanatory section that discusses the theoretical and empirical underpinnings of the programs. The treatment manual follows, leading readers through sessions with specific details about conducting the treatment that have been refined and improved through extensive testing and research. Organized into three sections: the major clinical disorders, social problems confronting children and teens, and preventive interventions, the Handbook brings together some of the most esteemed researcher-practitioners in the child and adolescent field. The book presents an impressive variety of innovative treatment programs and techniques, including the SiHLE program intended to prevent problems confronting children and teens, and preventive interventions. The Handbook brings together some of the most esteemed researcher-practitioners in the child and adolescent field. The book presents an impressive variety of innovative treatment programs and techniques, including the SiHLE program intended to prevent HIV through education and self-esteem building, the Children of Divorce Intervention Program, a therapy for younger children stressing resilience and skill building, and Strengths Oriented Family Therapy, which reaches out to substance-involved adolescents and their families. The Handbook of Evidence Based Child and Adolescent Treatment Manuals is an indispensable reference for researchers, graduate students, and practitioners working with children and adolescents in a multitude of settings, from schools and juvenile correction centers to group homes and family service agencies.

Multisensory and sensorimotor interactions in speech perception Kaisa Tiippana, Jean-Luc Schwartz, Riikka Möttönen, 2015-06-26. Speech is multisensory since it is perceived through several senses. Audition is the most important one as speech is mostly heard. The role of vision has long been acknowledged since many articulatory gestures can be seen on the talker's face. Sometimes speech can even be felt by touching the face. The best known multisensory illusion is the McGurk effect, where incongruent visual articulation changes the auditory percept. The interest in the McGurk effect arises from a major general question in multisensory research: How is information from different senses combined? Despite decades of research, a conclusive explanation for the illusion remains elusive. This is a good demonstration of the challenges in the study of multisensory integration. Speech is special in many ways. It is the main means of human communication and a manifestation of a unique language system. It is a signal with which all humans have a lot of experience. We are exposed to it from birth and learn it through development in face-to-face contact with others. It is a signal that we can both perceive and produce. The role of the motor system in speech perception has been debated for a long time. Despite very active current research, it is still unclear to which extent and in which role the motor system is involved in speech perception. Recent evidence shows that brain areas involved in speech production are activated during listening to speech and watching a talker's articulatory gestures Speaking involves coordination of articulatory movements and monitoring their auditory and somatosensory consequences How do auditory visual somatosensory and motor brain areas interact during speech perception How do these sensorimotor interactions contribute to speech perception It is surprising that despite a vast amount of research the secrets of speech perception have not yet been solved The multisensory and sensorimotor approaches provide new opportunities in solving them Contributions to the research topic are encouraged for a wide spectrum of research on speech perception in multisensory and sensorimotor contexts including novel experimental findings ranging from psychophysics to brain imaging theories and models reviews and opinions
