

Explicit Teaching

Gradual Release of Responsibility

Student
Teacher

Activate prior learning/ Build field knowledge

Present, explain and discuss the learning intention & the success criteria

When: Teacher's activates students' prior knowledge, language and experience

How: Build students' knowledge of the field by explicitly teaching the language associated with the task. This includes both 'social' and 'academic' language

Why: Students' understanding of the learning context and the vocabulary is essential to access and understand the explicit teaching that will follow in the following phases

Model and deconstruct

Model the learning intention and the success criteria

When: Teachers deconstruct the model using clear, scaffolded explanations.

How: Provide and deconstruct models and/or graphic organisers to represent the language, thinking and organisational strategies

Use 'think alouds' to explicitly model the strategies and language used when deconstructing the model.

Why: A shared metalinguage needs to be developed and gradually built up to enable participation, access and engagement in later phases

Joint construction

Model the learning intention and the success criteria

When: Teachers scaffold students' partial responses into complete ideas.

How: Model the thinking and organisational strategies that are required to demonstrate the knowledge/skill

Why: The vocabulary and metalinguage introduced in the earlier phases is further consolidated and contextualised during joint construction. This language is essential for engagement in remaining phases.

Supported practice

Model the learning intention and the success criteria

When: Teachers provide task oriented feedback.

How: Listen to how students talk about the task, watch how they work and probe into their thinking using prompts. Prompts encourage the student to think deeply about their performance and apply the feedback to demonstrate the success criteria.

Why: Students develop their proficiency by registering the task orientated feedback and then refining their practice.

Independent practice

Assess the learning intention against the success criteria

When: Students independently apply their learning to new individual or group tasks.

How: Any feedback in this phase must place responsibility on the student to improve and correct their work

Why: Through practice students develop their automaticity, fluency and comprehension strategies to complete a related task

Share and reflect

Students monitor and assess their own capability to demonstrate mastery

When: Teachers provide explicit feedback to students about their performance against the success criteria

When: Students and groups share their strategies and insights

How: Students reflect on their performance against the success criteria

Why: Students connect their next learning steps to current performance

Kaye Price, Jessa Rogers

John Fleming Explicit Teaching Model:

School Reform in an Era of Standardization Ian Hardy, 2020-12-29 School Reform in an Era of Standardization explores how teachers and school based administrators navigate the processes of accountability and standardization in schooling systems and settings It provides clear insights into how the work and learning of teachers and students in schools have been dramatically reconstituted by increased pressures of external political scrutiny and accountability The book reveals in detail the nature and effects of standardization processes upon schools and schooling systems Specifically it shows how curriculum development teaching and assessment practices have all been recalibrated under conditions of increased external scrutiny of teacher and student work and learning and how such processes are manifest in curriculum dominated by attention to literacy and numeracy more scripted pedagogies and standardized testing However the research not only elaborates the detrimental effects of such processes but also how those responsible for educating in schools teachers heads of curriculum deputy principals and principals have responded proactively by interpreting interrogating and challenging these conditions In this way it provides resources for hope evidence of what are described as more authentic accountabilities and at the same time it provides a clear portrait of the difficulty of fostering substantive curriculum teaching and assessment reform during an era of increasingly reductive accountability processes It will be an invaluable resource for understanding and enhancing practices in schools and school systems in the decades to come and for giving hope to educators in the ongoing work of rebuilding trust in public education

Improving Schools Using Systems Leadership Ian Macdonald, Clive Dixon, Tony Tiplady, 2019-06-26 It is easy to underestimate the impact that school organisation has on the behaviour effectiveness engagement and creativity of the teachers staff and students who work within it It also has a marked effect on the well being of staff members and how families and the community relate to the school Attempts to improve school organisation are often short term initiatives that only cover only one or two aspects of what it takes to organise a school effectively Improving Schools Using Systems Leadership in contrast provides those involved in the design and delivery of educational services with a coherent and easy to follow framework to help run an effective organisation Based on theory real data on education improvements at school and regional level and case studies this book demonstrates how Systems Leadership can be used to improve school organisation It integrates models of leadership teamwork capability structure and systems to help make them more effective in improving the learning outcomes of students and also sustain this improvement over time This book explains how Systems Leadership can and has been applied in schools to bring clarity to the purpose structure and systems within a school and have a major impact on its success As such it is an essential text for school leaders and managers looking for practical tools to help improve the working lives of the people within their organisation and hence their effectiveness
