

Managerial Accounting Midterm 1 Review

Chapter 1: Managerial Accounting

Managerial Accounting Basics

Managerial Accounting: a field of accounting that provides economic and financial information for managers and other stakeholders

Differences Between Financial and Managerial Accounting

Features	Financial Accounting	Managerial Accounting
Primary users & objectives	External users: shareholders, creditors, and lenders	Internal users: different parts of management
Types and frequency of reports	Financial statements quarterly and annually	Internal reporting as frequently as needed
Purpose of Reports	General purpose	Specific: for particular specific objectives
Content of Reports	Formal: no discretion as to whether highly aggregated (consolidated) is needed for decision making; standardized and uniform (generally accepted accounting principles)	Formal: no discretion as to business info shared; flexible: customized under accounting for very different data; nonstandardized for the reports
Regulation/Provision	regulated by CPA (Certified Professional Accountant)	Not Independent audit

Management Functions and Organizational Structures

Staff/Officer: the group of officials started by the shareholders and management at each profit organization to formulate operating policies, select officers, coordinate/over manage the company

Executive Officer (CEO): the one person officer who has shared responsibility for managing the business; he or she delegates work of other independent officers; he/she is the person officer

Line Officer: jobs that are directly involved in a company's main business; controlling & selling activities

Staff Officer: jobs that support the officer's other responsibilities

Chief Financial Officer (CFO): the corporate officer who is responsible for all company's accounting and finance issues

Controller: the financial officer who is responsible for a company's accounting records, system of internal controls, and preparation of financial statements, tax returns, and internal reports
