Chapter 1

INTRODUCTION

REVIEW QUESTIONS

- 1.1 What is a production system?

Answer: As defined in the text, a production system is a collection of people, equipment, and procedures organized to perform the manufacturing operations of a company.

- 1.2 Production systems consist of two major components. Name and briefly define them.

Answer: The two major components given in the text are (1) facilities, which consist of the factory, the equipment in the factory, and the way the equipment is organized; and (2) manufacturing support systems, which are the procedures used by the company to manage production and to solve the technical and logistics problems encountered in ordering materials, moving the work through the factory, and ensuring that products meet quality standards. Product design and certain business functions are included among the manufacturing support systems.

- 1.3 What are manufacturing systems, and how are they distinguished from production systems?

Answer: A manufacturing system is a logical grouping of equipment in the factory and the worker(s) who operate(s) it. Examples include worker-machine systems, production lines, and machine cells. A production system is a larger system that includes a collection of manufacturing systems and the support systems used to manage them. A manufacturing system is a subset of the production system.

- 1.4 Manufacturing systems are divided into three categories, according to worker participation. Name the three categories.

Answer: The three categories are (1) manual work systems, (2) worker-machine systems, and (3) automated systems.

- 1.5 What are the four functions included within the scope of manufacturing support systems?

Answer: As identified in the text, the four functions are (1) business functions, (2) product design, (3) manufacturing planning, and (4) manufacturing control.

- 1.6 Three basic types of automation are defined in the text. What is fixed automation and what are some of its features?

Answer: Fixed automation is a system in which the sequence of processing (or assembly) operations is fixed by the equipment configuration. Each operation in the sequence is usually simple, but the integration and coordination of many such operations in one piece of equipment makes the system complex. Typical features of fixed automation are (1) high initial investment for custom-engineered equipment, (2) high production rates, and (3) relatively inflexible in accommodating product variety.

- 1.7 What is programmable automation and what are some of its features?
