Linear Programming

If a linear programming problem has a solution, it must occur at a vertex of the set of feasible solutions (within the given constraints).

Start by sketching the region corresponding to the system of constraints. Find the vertices of that region and test the objective function at each of the vertices and select the values of the variables that optimize the objective function.

$P = 3x - 2y$

$x \geq 0$

$y \geq 0$

$x + y \leq 0$
