2015: Which new directions for Alzheimer's disease? Ludovic Martin, 2015-06-03 According to the World Health Organization more than 40 million people in the world are affected with dementia To date 60 70% of the cases of dementia are attributed to the Alzheimer's disease AD This neurodegenerative disorder gradually takes place over a period of at least 20 years before the onset of symptoms which are impaired memory apathy and depression The characteristics of AD consist in neurofibrillary tangles intraneuronal aggregates of hyperphosphorylated tau proteins and senile plaques dense extraneuronal deposits composed of amyloid A The other features linked to these two core pathological hallmarks of AD are inflammation oxidative stress progressive synaptic and neuronal loss In past years some of the emerging therapeutic strategies against AD were employed to deal with the pathological hallmarks of the disease Science teams all over the world try to restore the tau phosphorylation equilibrium Their purpose is to interfere with the aggregation of tau and decrease its amount of proteins per se as well Furthermore they are trying either to stimulate the elimination processes of the aggregated tau proteins or to stop the formation of A peptides This could be reached by the stimulation of the classic techniques of protein degradation such as the autophagic pathway or by the targeted immunotherapy In this Research Topic we wish to summarize and review the etiology of AD and the related therapeutic opportunities for the next decades To fully understand the precise mechanisms underlying AD research findings reviews new insights and new approaches include AD and related tauopathies tau phosphorylation balance pharmacological compounds against AD neuroprotection strategies and new therapeutic ways but also risk factors for AD and AD genetic information are included in this issue
