The IBM z/OS Communications Server TCP/IP Implementation series provides understandable step-by-step guidance about how to enable the most commonly used and important functions of z/OS Communications Server TCP/IP. This IBM Redbooks publication explains how to set up security for the z/OS networking environment. Network security requirements have become more stringent and complex. The IBM System z, the latest generation of the IBM distinguished family of mainframe systems, has come a long way from its IBM System 360 heritage. Likewise, its IBM z/OS operating system is far superior to its predecessors, providing among many other capabilities, world-class state-of-the-art support for the TCP/IP Internet protocol suite. TCP/IP is a large and evolving collection of communication protocols managed by the Internet Engineering Task Force (IETF), an open volunteer organization. Because of its openness, the TCP/IP protocol suite has become the foundation for the set of technologies that form the basis of the Internet. The convergence of IBM mainframe capabilities with Internet technology, connectivity and standards, particularly TCP/IP, is dramatically changing the face of information technology and driving requirements for ever more secure, scalable and highly available mainframe TCP/IP implementations. The IBM z/OS Communications Server TCP/IP Implementation series provides understandable step-by-step guidance about how to enable the most commonly used and important functions of z/OS Communications Server TCP/IP.
