

Exchange Rates

People, firms and nations exchange products for money and use the money to buy other products or to pay for the use of resources. Within an economy, prices are stated in the domestic currency, such as U.S. dollars or European euros. Buyers use their currency to purchase goods. International markets are different. Producers in other countries who export goods want to be paid in their own currencies so they can carry out transactions. As a result, a foreign exchange market develops where national currencies can be exchanged. Such markets serve the need of all international buyers and sellers. The equilibrium prices in these markets are called exchange rates. An exchange rate is the rate at which the currency of one nation is exchanged for the currency of another.
