Wildavsky,2001 Aaron Wildavsky's greatest concern as expressed in his writings is how people manage to live together This concern may at first appear to have little to do with the study of budgeting but for Wildavsky budgeting made living together possible Indeed as he argues here if you cannot budget you cannot govern Budgeting and Governing gathers in one place a mass of material that otherwise would be lost in a wilderness of journals and edited volumes With few exceptions Wildavsky chose the articles in this collection They are organized largely chronologically so that the reader can trace the progression of his thought which moved from studies of the American federal government through comparative work and on to placing budgeting within a broader theory of political culture Wildavsky wrote about budgeting because in his words when a process involves power authority culture consensus and conflict it captures a great deal of national political life Wildavsky was interested in budgeting because of what it could tell us about the classic questions of politics who gets what how and why His earlier analyses focus narrowly on budgeting personnel and agency actors in answering these questions while in his later work the contending actors become sub cultural types To Wildavsky politics was about finding terms for living together in spite of ideological differences Budgetary incrementalism helped to manage this otherwise unmanageable task He thought synoptic budgeting and all related reforms would increase disagreement and raise the stakes and so were unwise Analysis had to serve politics not try to displace it Aaron Wildavsky is considered one of the most innovative and prolific scholars in the field of political research in our time He was the author most recently of Culture and Social Theory and Federalism and Political Culture as well as Dilemmas of Presidential Leadership with Richard Ellis The Beleaguered Presidency and Craftways On the Organization of Scholarly Work all available from Transaction Brendon Swedlow is a visiting professor in the political science department at the University of California Los Angeles Joseph White is an associate professor in the Department of Health Systems Management at Tulane University Medical Center this collection of essays is to show the development of the late Wildavsky's ideas on budgeting from the beginning of his career to the end Recommended for research libraries and graduate students in public administration Choice Brendon Swedlow and Transaction Press have rendered policy scholars budget specialists and public managers a tremendous service by pulling together this posthumous collection of Aaron Wildavsky's writings on the vital it often politically tense relationship between budgeting and governing Journal of Policy Analysis and Management The West Virginia Review ,1927 The Literary World ,1877 Big Data Mining and Complexity Brian C.
