JCPenney [catalog]. ,2008 Transport and accessibility to public services Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Environmental Audit Committee,2013-06-24 This report looks at progress on improving accessibility since 2003 and ways of improving accessibility Problems with transport provision and the location of services can reinforce social exclusion by preventing people from accessing key local services and undermines government policies to tackle worklessness increase participation in education reduce crime and narrow health inequalities Insufficient progress has been made since the 2003 Social Exclusion Unit s Making the Connections report many findings of which are relevant today There is evidence that accessibility is worsening driven by tight budgets in central and local government Accessibility statistics show travel times to key services steadily increasing over time particularly for access to hospitals The Department for Transport needs to focus more closely on improving accessibility as well as on supporting the economy Existing transport funding could be better coordinated and directed to accessibility focused initiatives which will have a swifter impact on people s well being than large infrastructure projects The social value of transport and accessibility needs to be explicitly considered in policy making and in the planning system and should no longer be seen as a second order criterion The Committee believes it will take time for any improvements to make a noticeable difference Their recommendations focus on improving how government operates rather than funding Central government cannot abdicate its role in coordinating action across departmental silos and helping local authorities and service providers to share best practice Accessibility planning introduced by Making the Connections has had limited success and needs to be re energised New Jersey Register ,2007 Social Security Advisory Committee Great Britain. National Audit Office,2009 The Department for Work and Pensions has made progress in reducing the number of leaflets that it produces for its customers and in making application forms simpler and shorter The Department has significantly changed the way in which it provides information in recent years with a growth in telephone enquiries and in online provision The Department has reduced the quantity of leaflets that it produces for customers from 208 different leaflets in 2005 at a cost of 10.3 million to 53 leaflets in 2008 costing 1.7 million. It has also reduced the length of most of its forms though some are unnecessarily long and guidance notes are complicated and the Department's computer generated letters are overly long and confusing for customers. The Department has put telephone calls at the centre of its application process. It is also increasingly using the internet to communicate with customers. In response to the rise in applications for the Jobseeker's Allowance up by 81 per cent in the six months to January 2009 the Department plans to implement systems giving customers the option of full online applications for contributory Jobseeker's Allowance from summer 2009 rather than February 2010 as originally planned. Cost efficiencies from online provision have still to be realised fully. Though forms can be downloaded from the internet it is not yet possible to apply for most benefits online meaning that staff and customer time is taken up handling claims over the telephone or face to face.
