In understanding human behavior psychologists have long been interested in what motivates specific actions. Debates have pitted extrinsic motivators e.g. rewards/punishment against intrinsic motivation in attempting to determine what best motivates individuals. This book provides a summary view of what research has determined about both extrinsic and intrinsic motivation and clarifies what questions remain unanswered. Divided into three sections: Section I revisits the debate about the effects of extrinsic incentives or constraints on intrinsic motivation and creativity and identifies theoretical advances in motivational research. Section II focuses on the hidden costs and benefits of different types of achievement goals on motivation and performance. Section III discusses theory and research findings on how extrinsic and intrinsic motivators may work in everyday life and over time. This book is of interest to researchers in psychology, education and business as well as to a wider audience interested in promoting optimal motivation and performance.
