

PSYCHOLOGY 2301 STUDY GUIDE

CHAPTER 1 Psychology's Roots, Big Ideas, and Critical Thinking Tools

What is the definition of psychology?

The study of the mind and its function.

What is considered the birthdate of psychology, and why?

1879 is the year psychology is considered to be birthed because it was the year that William Wundt opened the first psychology laboratory.

What is critical thinking?

A way of thinking that uncovers hidden values, examines assumptions, weighs evidence, and assesses conclusions. Arguments are carefully considered rather than blindly accepted.

What is culture?

The continuing values, traditions, and behaviors shared by a group of people that is passed down from one generation to another.

To what does the nature-nurture debate refer?

It refers to the influence that genes and experience have in the development of psychological traits and behaviors. Many psychologists believe that traits and behaviors arise from the interaction of nature and nurture.

What is hindsight bias?

The inclination to believe, after discovering the outcome, that we could have predicted it.

What is replication?

The act of repeating the process of a research study, often using different participants in different situations, to see whether the basic finding can be copied.

What is a case study and what are its limitations?

When one individual or group is studied in depth, in the hope to reveal things that are true of all of us. Case study limitations include not being able to generalize the results to the wider population, researcher's bias being present, and consuming too much time.

What are some of the limitations of the survey method of research?

Limitations of the survey method include the wording effects such as interpretation, people not answering truthfully, people failing to answer questions, and a lack of personalization.

What is naturalistic observation?

Observing and recording behavior in naturally occurring situations without controlling the situation.

What is a random sample?

A sample that fairly represents every member of the population with an equal chance of presence.

Know the following terms:

Double-blind procedure: A procedure when neither the participant nor the research staff know about who has received the treatment or placebo.

Placebo: An inactive substance or condition that is often given to the control group rather than the treatment.

Placebo effect: Results that were caused solely off of expectation.

Independent variable: The factor that is manipulated in an experiment.

Dependent variable: The factor that is being measured in an experiment.

Operational Definition: A statement of the ways a researcher will measure behaviors or qualities.

Illusory Correlation: The phenomenon of believing there is a relationship between variables even though there is no such relationship.

Correlation Coefficient: A numerical measure of a correlation, measuring a statistical relationship between two variables.

Perspectives on Thinking, Learning, and Cognitive

Styles Robert J. Sternberg, Li-fang Zhang, 2014-04-08 This volume presents the most comprehensive balanced and up to date coverage of theory and research on cognitive thinking and learning styles in a way that represents diverse theoretical perspectives includes solid empirical evidence testing the validity of these perspectives and shows the application of these perspectives to school situations as well as situations involving other kinds of organizations International representation is emphasized with chapters from almost every major leader in the field of styles Each chapter author has contributed serious theory and or published empirical data work that is primarily commercial or that implements the theories of others The book's central premise is that cognitive learning and thinking styles are not abilities but rather preferences in the use of abilities Traditionally many psychologists and educators have believed that people's successes and failures are attributable mainly to individual differences in abilities However for the past few decades research on the roles of thinking learning and cognitive styles in performance within both academic and nonacademic settings has indicated that they account for individual differences in performance that go well beyond abilities New theories better differentiate styles from abilities and make more contact with other psychological literatures recent research in many cases is more careful and conclusive than are some of the older studies Cognitive learning and thinking styles are of interest to educators because they predict academic performance in ways that go beyond abilities and because taking styles into account can help teachers to improve both instruction and assessment and to show sensitivity to cultural and individual diversity among learners They are also of interest in business where instruments to assess styles are valuable in selecting and placing personnel The state of the art research and theory in this volume will be of particular interest to scholars and graduate students in cognitive and educational psychology managers and others concerned with intellectual styles as applied in educational industrial and corporate settings *Recording for the Blind & Dyslexic, ...
