Artificial Intelligence in Accounting Othmar M. Lehner, Carina Knoll, 2022-08-05 Artificial intelligence AI and Big Data based applications in accounting and auditing have become pervasive in recent years. However, research on the societal implications of the widespread and partly unregulated use of AI and Big Data in several industries remains scarce despite salient and competing utopian and dystopian narratives. This book focuses on the transformation of accounting and auditing based on AI and Big Data. It not only provides a thorough and critical overview of the status quo and the reports surrounding these technologies but it also presents a future outlook on the ethical and normative implications concerning opportunities, risks and limits. The book discusses topics such as future human-machine collaboration, cybernetic approaches to decision making and ethical guidelines for good corporate governance of AI-based algorithms and Big Data in accounting and auditing. It clarifies the issues surrounding the digital transformation in this arena, delineates its boundaries and highlights the essential issues and debates within and concerning this rapidly developing field. The authors develop a range of analytic approaches to the subject, both appreciative and sceptical, and synthesise new theoretical constructs that make better sense of human-machine collaborations in accounting and auditing. This book offers academics a variety of new research and theory building on digital accounting and auditing from and for accounting and auditing scholars, economists, organisations and management academics and political and philosophical thinkers. Also, as a landmark work in a new area of current policy interest, it will engage regulators and policy makers, reflective practitioners and media commentators through its authoritative contributions, editorial framing and discussion, and sector studies and cases.

260 000 per year While the requirements of FRS 102 are in some ways less onerous than the existing UK set of standards there will still be a large onus on companies and their advisors to plan properly as they make the transition to adopting the new standard There are a number of factors accountants need to consider in adopting the new standard such as the way in which a number of areas will be accounted for e g subsequent expenditure on fixed assets leases and employee benefits Also the terminology of the new standard will be unfamiliar to many and there will be some changes to the format of the financial statements Readers will benefit from the usual well structured and practical nature of the commentary Worked examples are prevalent and as new editions are published examples from real life companies will be added The book focusses on each area of the financial statement in turn and explains how they are treated by FRS 102 as opposed to the existing UK GAAP There are chapters covering various specialist sectors such as agriculture financial institutions oil and gas insurance and public benefit entities The final chapter gives some guidance on the processes that need to be considered as businesses make the transition from the existing set of standards to FRS 102
