

Chemistry – Unit 6 Notes 1 - Thomson Model of the Atom

J. J. Thomson performed experiments with cathode rays in an attempt to understand electricity – which was still a mystery in the late 1800s. Use the website *A Look Inside the Atom*¹ to find the conclusions that Thomson and other physicists drew regarding the mysterious cathode rays.

Thomson's 1897 Experiments - state the conclusions Thomson drew from each of his famous cathode ray experiments:

1. First Experiment: Thomson directed the beam at an electrometer and tried to separate the evidence of charge from the path of the beam. What connection did Thomson find between charge and the cathode rays? Was the charge positive or negative?
2. Second Experiment: Thomson tried passing the cathode ray through an electric field. How did cathode ray beam behave when it passed through an electric field? What did he conclude after his second experiment?
3. Third Experiment: Thomson did some careful measurements on how much the path of the cathode ray was bent in a magnetic field and how much energy they carried. From this work Thomson could describe the mass/charge ratio of the cathode ray particles. What amazing result did Thomson find?

Thomson's Atomic Model: Thomson presented three hypotheses from his experiments. Only two were accepted by physicists – in fact the third was shown to be wrong! From the first two came a model of the atom known as the Plum Pudding model. Complete the atom drawing below to illustrate Thomson's plum pudding model. Explain how this fits with his observations.

Hydrothermal Mineral Deposits Franco Pirajno, 2012-12-06 This book is intended primarily for exploration geologists and post graduate students attending specialist courses in mineral exploration Exploration geologists are engaged not only in the search for new mineral deposits but also in the extension and re assessment of existing ones To succeed in these tasks the exploration geologist is required to be a generalist of the Earth sciences rather than a specialist The exploration geologist needs to be familiar with most aspects of the geology of ore deposits and detailed knowledge as well as experience play an all important role in the successful exploration for mineral commodities In order to achieve this it is essential that the exploration geologist be up to date with the latest developments in the evolution of concepts and ideas in the Earth sciences This is no easy task as thousands of publications appear every year in an ever increasing number of journals periodicals and books For this reason it is also difficult at times to locate appropriate references on a particular mineral deposit type although this problem is alleviated by the existence of large bibliographic data bases of geological records abstracts and papers on computers During my teaching to explorationists and indeed during my years of work as an explorationist the necessity of having a text dealing with the fundamental aspects of hydrothermal mineral deposits has always been compelling Metallic mineral deposits can be categorised into three great families namely 1 magmatic 2 sedimentary and residual 3 hydrothermal
