Hello World Hannah Fry, 2018-09-18 Shortlisted for the 2018 Baillie Gifford Prize and the 2018 Royal Society Investment Science Book Prize A beautifully accessible guide One of the best books yet written on data and algorithms Times UK If you were accused of a crime who would you rather decide your sentence a mathematically consistent algorithm incapable of empathy or a compassionate human judge prone to bias and error What if you want to buy a driverless car and must choose between one programmed to save as many lives as possible and another that prioritizes the lives of its own passengers And would you agree to share your family s full medical history if you were told that it would help researchers find a cure for cancer These are just some of the dilemmas that we are beginning to face as we approach the age of the algorithm when it feels as if the machines reign supreme Already these lines of code are telling us what to watch where to go whom to date and even whom to send to jail But as we rely on algorithms to automate big important decisions in crime justice healthcare transportation and money they raise questions about what we want our world to look like What matters most Helping doctors with diagnosis or preserving privacy Protecting victims of crime or preventing innocent people being falsely accused Hello World takes us on a tour through the good the bad and the downright ugly of the algorithms that surround us on a daily basis Mathematician Hannah Fry reveals their inner workings showing us how algorithms are written and implemented and demonstrates the ways in which human bias can literally be written into the code By weaving in relatable real world stories with accessible explanations of the underlying mathematics that power algorithms Hello World helps us to determine their power expose their limitations and examine whether they really are improvement on the human systems they replace

Mathematical Modeling of the Immune System in Homeostasis, Infection and Disease Gennady Bocharov, Burkhard Ludewig, Andreas Meyerhans, Vitaly Volpert, 2020-02-24 The immune system provides the host organism with defense mechanisms against invading pathogens and tumor development and it plays an active role in tissue and organ regeneration Deviations from the normal physiological functioning of the immune system can lead to the development of diseases with various pathologies including autoimmune diseases and cancer Modern research in immunology is characterized by an unprecedented level of detail that has progressed towards viewing the immune system as numerous components that function together as a whole network. Currently we are facing significant difficulties in analyzing the data being generated from high throughput technologies for understanding immune system dynamics and functions, a problem known as the curse of dimensionality. As the mainstream research in mathematical immunology is based on low resolution models, a fundamental question is how complex the mathematical models should be. To respond to this challenging issue, we advocate a hypothesis driven approach to formulate and apply available mathematical modelling technologies for understanding the complexity of the immune system. Moreover, pure empirical analyses of immune system behavior and the system's response to external perturbations can only produce a static description of the individual components of the immune system and the interactions between them. Shifting our view of the immune system from a static schematic perception to a dynamic multi level system is a daunting task. It requires the development of appropriate mathematical methodologies for the holistic and quantitative analysis of multi level molecular and cellular networks. Their coordinated behavior is dynamically controlled via distributed feedback and feedforward mechanisms which altogether orchestrate immune system functions. The molecular regulatory loops inherent to the immune system that mediate cellular behaviors, e.g. exhaustion, suppression, activation and tuning, can be analyzed using mathematical categories such as multi stability, switches, ultra sensitivity, distributed system, graph dynamics or hierarchical control.
