June Limpopo 2015 Exam Papers:

The Promise of New Technologies in an Age of New Health Challenges A.J. Maeder, K. Ho, A. Marcelo, 2016-11-24 There is a changed emphasis in many health services with conventional pressures such as budget and workforce constraints combined with the indirect forces of social change and strategic direction bringing about the need for more flexible approaches for the longer term. By enabling different care models and delivery channels telehealth offers demonstrably effective and sustainable solutions for issues such as access to and quality of care. This book presents 18 papers delivered at the 5th Global Telehealth Conference held in Auckland New Zealand in November 2016. The theme chosen for Global Telehealth 2016 is The Promise of New Technologies in an Age of New Health Challenges and the papers included here cover a wide variety of topics from theoretical and abstract contributions through to discussions of practical projects and highly specific applied contributions. The book also includes two invited papers which detail recent contributions to two global issues in which telehealth plays a major role: universal health coverage and personal health monitoring. With papers ranging in scope from computer assisted screening technology for diabetic retinopathy to behavior change through computer games, this book will be of interest to all those involved in the design and provision of healthcare services.

Prisoners of the Past Steven Friedman, 2021-06-01 Building on the work of economic historian Douglass North and Ugandan political scholar Mahmood Mamdani, Friedman argues that the difficulties besetting South African democracy are legacies of the past, not products of the post 1994 era. South Africa's democracy is often seen as a story of bright beginnings gone astray, a pattern said to be common to Africa. The negotiated settlement of 1994 is claimed to have ended racial domination and created the foundation for a prosperous democracy, but greedy politicians betrayed the promise of a new society. In Prisoners of the Past, Steven Friedman astutely argues that this misreads the nature of contemporary South Africa. Building on the work of the economic historian Douglass North and the political thinker Mahmood Mamdani, Friedman shows that South African democracy's difficulties are legacies of the pre 1994 past. The settlement which ushered in majority rule left intact core features of the apartheid economy and society. The economy continues to exclude millions from its benefits while racial hierarchies have proved stubborn. Apartheid is discredited but the values of the pre 1948 colonial era, the period of British colonization, still dominate. Thus South Africa's democracy supports free elections, civil liberties and the rule of law, but also continues past patterns of exclusion and domination. Friedman reasons that this path dependence is not, as is often claimed, the result of constitutional compromises in 1994 that left domination untouched. This bargain was flawed because it brought not too much compromise but too little. Compromises extended political citizenship to all, but there were no similar bargains on economic and cultural change. Using the work of the radical sociologist Harold Wolpe, Friedman shows that only negotiations on a new economy and society can free South Africans from the prison of the past.

Gender and Rural Globalization Jose Quero-Garcia, Amy Iezzoni, Joanna Pulawska, Gregory A. Lang, 2017-08-11 This book explores how rural gender relations are changing in a globalizing world that fundamentally impacts on the structure of agricultural life in rural areas and urban rural relations It analyses the development of rural gender relations in specific places around the world and looks into the effects of the increasing connectivity and mobility of people across places The themes covered are gender and mobility gender and agriculture Gender and rural politics rurality and Gender identity and women and international development Each theme has an overview of the state of the art in that specific thematic area and integrates the case studies that follow

Illicit Financial Flows from South Africa Serges Djoyou Kamga, 2021-09-21 This book examines the detrimental impact of illicit financial flows on South Africa's development political economy and transformation in the 21st century Over the years illicit financial flows have led to the systematic looting and channelling away of South African resources yet they are rarely studied by researchers looking to explain the country's underdevelopment and political economy This book looks across sectors showing that illicit financial flows cut across all the key pillars of development frustrating the betterment of people's lives in South Africa Investigating the problem from a decolonial perspective the book delves deep into the catastrophic impacts of illicit financial flows for people and the economy discusses how the problem is being combatted and ultimately suggests solutions for rebuilding social trust between people and the state Making an important contribution to the decolonial debate as well as to discussions of South Africa's political economy this book will be of interest to researchers across African studies global development political science law and corruption studies

Measuring Transboundary Water Cooperation Saruchera, D., Lautze, Jonathan, 2015-12-31 Water cooperation has received prominent focus in the post 2015 United Nations Sustainable Development Goals SDGs While proposals for measuring water cooperation appear to be converging toward a small set of indicators the degree to which these proposed indicators draw on past work is unclear This paper mines relevant past work to generate guidance for monitoring the proposed SDG target related to transboundary water cooperation Potential measures of water cooperation were identified filtered and applied in three countries Botswana South Africa and Zimbabwe Six indicators were ultimately determined as being suitable for measuring water cooperation As the SDG process turns its focus to the selection of indicators the indicators proposed in this paper may merit consideration

Enhancing Food Production System Resilience for Food Security Facing a Changing Environment Liming Ye, Ping Zhu, 2023-11-28 As the dominant source of the human food supply the global land system underlies the foundation of the livelihood and wellbeing of humanity on Earth On the one hand the growth rate in the land system's productive capacity of food has played a key role in global food provision Technological breakthroughs in wheat and rice production during the past few decades for instance have greatly contributed to the maintenance of this growth rate in many parts of the world On the other hand however the terrestrial food production system is facing increasing challenges from environmental stressors ranging from climate change

air pollution to land degradation Whether and how the global land system will support the food security of more than 10 billion people in the 21st century while minimizing its environmental footprint remains an open question to debate It is inevitable that the global food production system has to be shifted from focusing on production expansion to land system resilience so that the dual goals of sustainable production and environmental friendliness can be simultaneously achieved

Charcoal, Food, and Water Production in the Tropics: Applying Nexus Thinking to Improve Research and Policy Approaches in Complex Landscapes Tuyeni Heita Mwampamba, Adrian Ghilardi, Rob Bailis, 2020-02-04 Editorial Tuyeni H Mwampamba Rob Bailis Adrian Ghilardi Urbanization food and water consumption trends in many tropical countries show that demand for charcoal as a source of cooking energy meat grain and water will rise to proportions that surpass the ability of existing ecosystems to supply these services simultaneously and at desired qualities Consequently drastic changes to policy and practice are needed to improve ecosystem potential and or alter demand trends Traditional charcoal production in sub Saharan Africa South East Asia and Latin America often competes or co exists with livestock keeping and agriculture and has a tendency to occur in water limited woodlands The co occurrence of charcoal and food production results in complex landscapes characterized by strong interactions between subsystems managed by multiple sets of actors with potentially competing objectives These social ecological systems provide goods and services that are essential to millions of people throughout the global south Nevertheless there have been very few detailed studies of such systems particularly on the individual and combined effects of charcoal crop and livestock production on the hydrological system that maintains them and vice versa As a result these multi use landscapes are typically managed by short sighted highly generalized mono sectorial policies that ignore important tradeoffs and undercapitalize on synergies A system level approach could provide important insights that improve and expand current understanding of this energy food water nexus Tackling urgent and complex problems composed of multiple and interrelated factors lies at the heart of nexus thinking an approach that examines the inter relatedness and interdependencies of environmental resources and their transitions and fluxes across spatial scales and between compartments UNU FLORES 2015 and relies on interdisciplinary research and multi sector policy teams It has attracted significant interest from international organizations the private sector and governments as a way to develop integrated equitable solutions that involve inputs from multiple stakeholders However this approach is notably absent in the research arena Identifying appropriate interventions for achieving sustainable charcoal and food production and maintaining the underlying hydrological system on which they depend requires that the systems are considered simultaneously and that their biophysical social and political inter relations are well understood Taking charcoal as the nexus entry point this Research Topic aims to generate new understanding of charcoal production systems by incorporating agriculture and hydrology into the matrix We were interested in empirical articles reviews meta analytical articles and perspective papers that address at least two of the three nexus components and which offer provocative and insightful perspectives into the nexus as a whole We hope that this Research Topic will 1 facilitate identification of research gaps policy opportunities and priorities for the nexus 2 kick start the development of a community of researchers and practitioners working on the nexus and 3 permit the development of a research agenda that explores the nexus globally across multiple study sites Financial Mail ,2004-08 Southern Africa Environment Outlook ,2008 PSLE examination papers 2015-2017 ,2018
