

The Powers of the Church

Few institutions in history have had the power held by the Catholic Church during the Middle Ages. Probably the most significant power of the Church was the power of excommunication. Any person who angered Church authorities could be excommunicated, or cut off from all Church services. The person could not receive the sacraments and therefore, according to the Church, had no chance for salvation. When the same principle was applied to an entire nation, the decree was called an interdict. When a nation was under an interdict, no services could be held, no marriages were permitted, and no christenings or proper burials could take place. An interdict stayed in place until the ruler who had displeased the Church gave in to the demands of the Pope.

Another power of the medieval Church was the Truce of God. In an attempt to bring some order to a chaotic age, the Church forbid feudal warfare from Thursday evening (some sources say Wednesday morning) until Monday morning, and on holidays. The Church also decreed the Peace of God, designed to forbid fighting around holy places and to protect those who did not fight.

One of the strongest powers of the Church lay with the Holy Inquisition. The Inquisition was a special court whose purpose was to seek out and punish heretics, people whose beliefs went against the teachings of the Church. The Inquisition sometimes relied on torture to attain confessions and was known to burn people who refused to change their beliefs and accept the views of the Church.

Finally, an economic power of the Church was the tithe. The tithe was a sum of money each person was required to pay to the Church. Anyone who didn't pay the tithe risked excommunication.
