Historically, the study of psychology and neuropsychology has focused on the male brain being the standard to which all or most variables are considered. The study of sex differences is perhaps the most provoking and far-reaching aspect of diversity because frequently women have unique assessment and treatment needs. For example, frontal lobe functioning tends to be more contextual for women than for men. These brain functions have behavioral counterparts that directly relate to how interventions may be tailor-made to suit the female rather than male patient. The goal in neuropsychology is always to improve diagnosis and treatment outcomes and a cohesive summary of the neuropsychology of the female brain would raise awareness and cultural competency of clinicians in neuropsychology. Authors will focus on sex differences in the neuropsychological, cognitive and development literature, ethnic and socioeconomic variables affecting diagnosis and treatment of women and social, emotional and behavioral manifestations of neuropsychological sex differences.      Cumulated Index Medicus , 1975      Report on medical education and official register of legally qualified physicians, 1903 Illinois State Board of Health, 1903      National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1988      Medical and Health Care Books and Serials in Print , 1997      Medical Visitor and Directory of Homoeopathic Physicians , 1900 List of homoeopathic physicians by states      Subject Guide to Books in Print , 1996      Learning and Behaviour in Medicine Robin Stevenson, 2022-02-14 This concise practical guide supports a broadly based understanding of continuing medical education and professional development without being overly theoretical.
