

MOTHERHOOD DURING COVID-19

How to Balance Your Child's Nutrition

How can I protect my newborn from Covid-19?

To protect your baby's immunity, breastfeeding provides the best immunisation (providing antibodies to your baby's cells, within the first few weeks of birth). Breast milk contains all the best antibodies. Breast milk also provides natural protection to support your baby's immune system. The natural first breastfeeding is the best way to protect your baby against infections and strengthen immune response.

As long as you are breastfeeding, the best way to protect your baby is to continue breastfeeding. It is also possible to use breast milk for your baby's immune system and health as long as you are breastfeeding.

How long should I breastfeed my child for it to be beneficial?

Some mothers may choose to breastfeed for a few weeks when their baby is born, or breastfeed for up to 12 months. Depending on how long you breastfeed your child is a personal decision, but understanding the benefits of breast milk, which is good for your child's life could help you decide how long you want to breastfeed for.

01 First 6 Months

Your first breast milk, also known as colostrum, has a high concentration of antibodies and other immune properties that protect your newborn against diseases like diarrhoea, or infection or respiratory infections.

02 First 6 Months

The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) recommends exclusively breastfeeding the baby until they are at least 6 months old, as breast milk provides optimal nutrition for the baby for the first six months of life. Your breast milk composition also changes with time to the baby's changing needs during the first six months.

Beyond the first milk, breast milk contains all the essential nutrients with the right combination of fats, proteins, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals for your baby's needs. Breast milk is easily digestible and supports your newborn's gastrointestinal health. It contains all the essential nutrients for growth. It supports the immune system of the newborn, in particular, it supports the baby's immune system to fight off infections and to support the baby's immune system to fight off infections.

03 Beyond 6 Months

Beyond 6 months, breast milk alone will no longer be able to provide all the nutrients required for growth and development.

Your child's diet has to be supplemented with complementary foods like formula or solids. Most babies start to show signs of weaning, usually around the 6th month, but mothers can introduce appropriate solid foods to infants at any time after 6 completed months and before the end of 6 completed months.

It is important for you to know the signs of readiness to wean, including: increased alertness and baby's eyes, looking up, reaching, crawling, walking, etc. However, when weaning, it is important to ensure the baby's diet is balanced.
