Intelligence and Exceptionality Jeanne D. Day, John G. Borkowski, 1987 This volume much like its companion text Cognition in Special Children focuses on intellectual and motivational processes that characterize individuals at the extremes of human talent The aim is to understand more about exceptional children how they are like and unlike other children and what intellectual and motivational processes best explain their delayed or accelerated performance The link between exceptionality and intelligence is examined from three perspectives the role of intelligence theories and tests in the diagnosis and classification of retarded learning disabled and gifted children and adolescents the use of intelligence theory to guide educational programming and the importance of special populations for constructing revising and assessing new models of intelligence

The Gifted and Talented Frances Degen Horowitz, Marion O'Brien, 1985 The chapters that this book comprises represent what is known about the gifted and the talented from a developmental perspective As one author after the other stresses this volume is equally a testament to what is not known The chapters in this section Part I reflect the lack of agreement in past research over the nature of giftedness but the authors raise similar questions for future investigations These five chapters set forth major issues facing investigators in the field of giftedness From the diverse points of view emerges one commonality the call for prospective developmental research guided by theory to aid our understanding of the complex of factors that contribute to gifted performance The authors of the chapters in this section Part II discuss giftedness in a social perspective and suggest areas in which research and innovative action might be most useful In this section Part III authors explore approaches to studying the development of the gifted from diverse and innovative points of view PsycINFO Database Record c 2004 APA all rights reserved Instructor, 2005
