Order without Design Alain Bertaud, 2018-12-04 An argument that operational urban planning can be improved by the application of the tools of urban economics to the design of regulations and infrastructure Urban planning is a craft learned through practice Planners make rapid decisions that have an immediate impact on the ground the width of streets the minimum size of land parcels the heights of buildings The language they use to describe their objectives is qualitative sustainable livable resilient often with no link to measurable outcomes Urban economics on the other hand is a quantitative science based on theories models and empirical evidence largely developed in academic settings In this book the eminent urban planner Alain Bertaud argues that applying the theories of urban economics to the practice of urban planning would greatly improve both the productivity of cities and the welfare of urban citizens Bertaud explains that markets provide the indispensable mechanism for cities development He cites the experience of cities without markets for land or labor in pre reform China and Russia this urban planners dream created inefficiencies and waste Drawing on five decades of urban planning experience in forty cities around the world Bertaud links cities productivity to the size of their labor markets argues that the design of infrastructure and markets can complement each other examines the spatial distribution of land prices and densities stresses the importance of mobility and affordability and critiques the land use regulations in a number of cities that aim at redesigning existing cities instead of just trying to alleviate clear negative externalities Bertaud concludes by describing the new role that joint teams of urban planners and economists could play to improve the way cities are managed

The Institutionalisation of Disaster Risk Reduction Gideon van Riet, 2016-12-01 The past three decades have seen a global shift in disaster management from an event driven response to a could be risk management approach Disaster risk reduction DRR has become entrenched as a dominant paradigm within the field of disaster management More than a decade after adopting DRR legislation in South Africa there remains a dearth of evidence that this has translated into substantive action This book examines the institutionalisation of DRR in South Africa conceived of as a political economy of knowledge production Using a critical theory approach the book does not consider why DRR is failing but instead asks why DRR As such it explores possibilities beyond DRR s narrow optic and offers new insights into disaster management through the lens of South Africa This is valuable reading for graduate students and academics working in disaster studies geography public policy and development post development studies as well as policy makers

Gender and Identity around the World Chuck Stewart, 2020-11-09 This book provides an indispensable resource for high school and college students interested in the history and current status of gender identity formation and maintenance and how it impacts LGBTQ rights throughout the world Gender and Identity around the World explores a variety of gender and LGBTQ experiences and issues in countries from all the world's regions. Guided by more than 50 recognized academic experts, readers will examine how gender and LGBTQ identities are developed, fought for, perceived and policed in countries as diverse as France, Brazil, Russia, Jordan, Iraq and China. Each chapter opens with a general introduction to a country or group of countries and flows into a discussion of gender and identity in terms of culture, education, family life, health and wellness, law, work and activism in that region of the world. A section on contemporary issues specific to the country or group of countries follows this discussion.

Identification and Citizenship in Africa Séverine Awenengo Dalberto, Richard Banégas, 2021-05-09 In the context of a global biometric turn, this book investigates processes of legal identification in Africa from below, asking what this means for the relationship between citizens and the state. Almost half of the population of the African continent is thought to lack a legal identity, and many states see biometric technology as a reliable and efficient solution to the problem. However, this book shows that biometrics, far from securing identities and avoiding fraud or political distrust, can even participate in reinforcing exclusion and polarizing debates on citizenship and national belonging. It highlights the social and political embedding of legal identities and the resilience of the documentary state. Drawing on empirical research conducted across 14 countries, the book documents the processes, practices and meanings of legal identification in Africa from the 1950s right up to the biometric boom. Beyond the classic opposition between surveillance and recognition, it demonstrates how analysing the social uses of IDs and tools of identification can give a fresh account of the state at work, the practices of citizenship and the role of bureaucracy in the writing of the self in African societies. This book will be of an important reference for students and scholars of African studies, politics, human security and anthropology, and the sociology of the state. Rethinking Third Places Joanne Dolley, Caryl Bosman, 2019 Ray Oldenburg's concept of third place is revisited in this book through contemporary approaches and new examples of third places. Third place is not your home, first place, not your work, second place, but those informal public places in which we interact with the people. Readers will come to understand the importance of third places and how they can be incorporated into urban design to offer places of interaction promoting togetherness in an urbanised world of mobility and rapid change. The Bloomsbury Handbook of Gender and Educational Leadership and Management Victoria Showunmi, Pontso Moorosi, Charol Shakeshaft, Izhar Oplatka, 2022-02-24 Drawing together diverse research perspectives and theoretical underpinnings, this handbook explores gender as a social category and examines cultural and social differences. Bringing together diverse perspectives from around the world, including from Africa, Europe, the Middle East, the UK and the USA, the volume sets out the gender and educational leadership and management field, providing a snapshot of the field as it stands, signalling its development and directions for future development. It offers focused reviews of empirical research on particular aspects of the field and presents new insights from research findings and methodological approaches.
