Life Orientation Task Case Study Grade 2015:

Transparency in Assessment – Exploring the Influence of Explicit Assessment Criteria Anders Jönsson, Frans Prins, 2019-04-03 In many schools and higher education institutions it has become common practice to share assessment criteria with students Sometimes it is required for accountability purposes at other times criteria are used as a means to communicate expectations to students However the idea that explicit assessment criteria should be shared with students has been contested On the one hand research has shown that explicit criteria may positively affect student performance reduce their anxiety as well as support students use of self regulated learning strategies On the other hand there are fears that explicit criteria may have a restraining influence on students learning as well as limiting their autonomy and creativity There are also indications of students becoming more performance oriented as opposed to learning oriented when being provided with explicit assessment criteria Taken together it is not fully understood under which circumstances it is productive for student learning to share explicit assessment criteria and under which circumstances it is not In particular empirical research on the proposed negative effects of sharing criteria with learners is limited and most fears voiced in the literature are based on individual experiences and anecdotal evidence In this book we therefore bring different perspectives on transparency in assessment together in order to further our understanding of how students are influenced by the use of explicit assessment criteria A deeper understanding of the influence of explicit assessment criteria on students understanding of criteria motivation and learning is equally imperative for future research and educational practice both of which need to go beyond individual opinions and convictions

Discrimination in Childhood and Adolescence Christia Spears Brown, 2017-03-27 Discrimination impacts most youth at some point Almost all children and adolescents belong to at least one stigmatized group whether they are a Black or Latino boy in school an immigrant or refugee a gay lesbian or bisexual teen or a girl in physics class Discrimination on the basis of race ethnicity immigration status gender sexual orientation and gender identity can have long term academic psychological and social repercussions especially when it is directed at a cognitively developing child or an emotionally vulnerable adolescent How children and adolescents are impacted by this discrimination depends on their cognitive ability to perceive the bias the context in which the bias occurs and resources they have to help cope with the bias This book details synthesizes and analyzes the perception and impact of discrimination in childhood and adolescence across multiple stigmatized social groups to help us better understand the complex phenomenon of discrimination and its long term consequences By looking at the similarities and differences in discrimination across all social groups we can more fully understand its mechanisms of influence Before we can fully address the persistent achievement gap between White and ethnic minority children the high rates of suicidal thoughts among LGBT youth and the underrepresentation of girls in STEM careers we must first examine the ways in which discrimination influences and is understood by children with their unique cognitive constraints and within the specific contexts in which they live
