Background Information

Genetic material is passed from parents to offspring. This material is called DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid). DNA is the blueprint for life. It contains the instructions for building and maintaining an organism. DNA is found in the nucleus of cells. It is a long, thin molecule that is coiled into a double helix. The two strands of the double helix are made of sugar and phosphate groups. The bases of the double helix are nitrogenous bases. There are four types of nitrogenous bases: adenine, thymine, guanine, and cytosine. Adenine pairs with thymine, and guanine pairs with cytosine. This pairing is called base pairing. The sequence of bases in a DNA molecule determines the sequence of amino acids in a protein. The sequence of amino acids determines the shape and function of a protein. The shape and function of a protein determine the traits of an organism.
