

Agribusiness

Agribusiness is the business of agricultural production. The term, coined in 1957 by Goldberg and Davis, it includes agricultural machinery, breeding, crop production (farming and contract farming), distribution, farm machinery, processing and seed supply, etc. It is marketing and retail sales. All agents of the food and fiber value chain and those institutions that influence it are part of the agribusiness system.

Within the agriculture industry, "agribusiness" is used simply as a portmanteau of agriculture and business, referring to the range of active disciplines encompassed by modern production. There are academic departments of agribusiness, agribusiness associations, agribusiness publications, forth, worldwide in the context of agribusiness is agriculture, the business of agriculture production and distribution described as agribusinesses. However, "agribusinesses" most often emphasize "interdependence" of these various sectors in the production chain.

Among critics of large-scale, industrialized food production, agribusiness is used negatively synonymously with
