Structuring the Thesis David Kember, Michael Corbett, 2018-07-23 The book is a collective investigation of the structuring of theses in education the social sciences and other disciplines that commonly do not follow the standard procedures of the scientific method To help research students design a structure for their own thesis and liberate their investigations from the constraints associated with the use of the conventional structure it explains how the structures adopted were designed to suit the topic methodology and paradigm It also provides a wide range of examples to draw upon which suit a broad spectrum of theory methodological approaches research methods and paradigms Additionally by analyzing the methodologies and paradigms and reviewing the methodological and paradigmatic spectrum it offers a significant contribution to the way research is conceptualized The book addresses a number of key questions faced by students supervisors and examiners Why do examiners often find it difficult to read work in non scientific disciplines when theses are structured in accordance with the conventional scientific method Why do students in non scientific disciplines struggle to write up the outcomes of their research in the conventional structure What alternative thesis structures can be devised to better suit the wide range of methods Which theories and paradigms are commonly followed in education and the social sciences and how do these perspectives influence the research process What methods theories and paradigms are commonly adopted by education and social science students and what problems do these pose when students write their theses

Reinventing the Curriculum Mark Priestley, Gert Biesta, 2013-06-20 Scotland's Curriculum for Excellence offers an example of a different approach to national curriculum development It combines what are claimed to be the best features of top down and bottom up approaches to curriculum development and provides an indication of the broad qualities that school education should promote rather than a detailed description of curriculum content Advocates of the approach argue that it provides central guidance for schools and maintains national standards whilst at the same time allowing schools and teachers the flexibility to take account of local needs when designing programmes of education Reinventing the Curriculum uses Scotland's Curriculum for Excellence as a rich case study analysing the strengths and weaknesses of this approach to curriculum design and development and exploring the implications for curriculum planning and development around the world
