

Narrative Statement to Support Promotion to Associate Professor
For James Longhurst, Assistant Professor of History, UW-L
Fall, 2012

Executive Summary:

After completing 3 years as an Assistant Professor at a previous institution (credited as 1 year) and 4 at UW-L, I have amassed the service, skills, and accomplishments necessary for promotion. I have received positive student and peer evaluations, and possess a complex and evolving approach to teaching. I have published significant original research and enjoy an international profile in environmental history. I have also involved myself in considerable service across the campus. I believe that my accomplishments meet the requirements for promotion to Associate Professor at UW-L, and hope to continue to serve the university community at that rank.

Teaching

Summary of Most Significant Accomplishments:

I have successfully taught many large section sections of a pedagogically difficult survey-level world history course, (HIS-101 and 102), that satisfies both the needs of general education students and my own convictions about the field. At the same time, I have developed 3 completely new upper-division courses, offered 2 more that are substantially revised, and taught 3 existing courses in service to the history major. Through these courses, I serve programmatic needs in the history department as well as offer my expertise in environmental politics to the Political Science/Public Administration and Environmental Studies programs on campus.

Teaching Philosophy:

My approach to teaching has 3 components: first, choosing an appropriate role for different classrooms, second, planning student interaction with the knowledge that attention is precious, and third, attempting to de-mystify history to encourage engagement by all. In line with the findings of a number of educational researchers, I have found that it can be useful for instructors to choose a "role" for themselves in different classroom environments. This role can be determined by the needs of the students, the skills of the instructor, or the characteristics of the course. For example, an instructor might choose to describe herself as a disciplinarian, peer or impartial judge, depending upon the course. In the case of HIS-101 – quite often the only history class UW-L students might take – I have chosen a role as an "enthusiastic cheerleader." I understand my time in this class as an opportunity to demonstrate to the students, through my enthusiasm, interest and dedication, the intellectual attractions of history. But in upper-division classes, I think of myself as a "trout fishing guide" – for example, I know how to complete the research project a student begins myself, but I must guide the students to their desired ends while still allowing them to find their own paths and pitfalls, only stepping in when their overall success is threatened. Choosing a role allows me to tailor my behavior and approach to different classes, and to remind myself of this first principle when otherwise lost in the day-to-day process of teaching. What should I do today in class, I might ask myself, then remember – oh yes, I want to be an enthusiastic cheerleader for the explanatory power of history. In practice, this role of cheerleader allows me to maintain high academic standards and push students toward the critical, analytical goals of the course with encouragement and good cheer.

I also believe that attention is precious while content is inexhaustible. I have found it crucial to convince students to invest their time and mental energy in active learning. This usually means immersion in the primary sources of social and cultural history, or in case studies of public policy. The use of projected images and text – letters, maps, photos, documents, etc – opens up the classroom to a wealth of viewpoints, interpretations, and voices. With these sources, I stimulate student interest with a variety of structured activities including games, simulations, debates, moot courts, mock elections and quiz-show contests: almost anything to get precious attention.

Finally, one belief motivates all of my instruction: I believe that it is an important task to de-mystify academic knowledge in order to convince students that these pursuits are open and inviting to them. I put this belief into action in a variety of ways. For example, I employ advanced
