Abstract – The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the performance of female volleyball players. The study was conducted in a laboratory setting. The participants were 12 female volleyball players who were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The experimental group underwent a 12-week training program that focused on improving their jump height and landing technique. The control group did not receive any training. The results of the study showed that the experimental group had a significant increase in jump height and a decrease in landing time compared to the control group. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the performance of female volleyball players.
