

Life in the medieval times

Throughout the medieval time period intellectual life suffered greatly, and it is visible in how the people lived. During what was once “The dark ages” (now medieval times) there was much despair and poverty, and money was unevenly balanced between lower classes and higher classes. Due to this, life of the lower classes were incredibly different from those of a higher class. Reading William Manchester’s A World Lit Only By Fire portrayed the differences in life between these classes through the food, the homes they lived in, and health. One of the major way the two classes were seperated was the food that they ate and even how they ate it at times. Throughout history food has always been a key to wealth and the higher class, and the medieval times were no exception.

The peasants, the lowest class harvested the fields and ate some of what they collected while some of it went to those they harvested for. But during the worst of seasons Manchester wrote the peasants were “forced to sell all they owned, including their pitifully inadequate clothing, and be reduced to nudity in all seasons.”(Manchester 54). But in the times when they had no more to sell they would eat “Bark, roots, grass; even white clay” and Manchester goes on to say “Cannibalism was not unknown. Strangers and travelers were waylaid and killed to be eaten, and there are tales of gallows being torn down --- as many as twenty bodies would hang from a single scaffold --- by men frantic to eat the warm flesh raw.”(Manchester 54). Manchester tells of a story of a peasant revived by the smell of animal waste after passing out at the smells of a perfume shop, meant to show the level of dirtiness that the peasants were accustomed to. But the higher the class the more safety there was for food resources, and kings would never go hungry, due to their immense wealth they could buy up even the smallest bits of food.

How valid is the view of Medieval Europe as a 'Dark Age'? Tanja Hollederer, 2005-09-16 Essay from the year 2005 in the subject History of Europe Middle Ages Early Modern Age grade High Distinction University of New England Australia language English abstract Nowadays when the people think about the Middle Ages names like Joan of Arc Nostradamus Richard the Lionheart William the Conqueror King Arthur and Robin Hood immediately spring to mind Chivalry magic romance adventure superstition and torture are the first characteristics they come up with and events they associate with it are the Crusades the Hundred Years War witchcraft trials and the spread of the Black Death As the modern view of the Middle Ages is biased by novels and the latest Hollywood movies in general the perception of it as a time of glorious battles and brave knights dominates The age is glorified in annual festivals like knight games and bard contests partly because this is more attractive and partly because the inconvenience of everyday life then can hardly be imagined by people enjoying today's living standards This has not always been the case yet The term Middle Ages indicates what Italian humanists of the Renaissance think about that time They see it as a mere interim between the greatness of the Antiquity and its revival in the Renaissance 1 Furthermore this episode is often referred to as the Dark Age an expression introduced by Petrarch in the 1330s and later used to criticise the lack of cultural achievements during that period of time 2 The question how valid this view is concerning Medieval Europe forms the centre of the following explanations To answer it the paper follows the common distinction between the Early Middle Ages 500 1050 the High Middle Ages 1050 to 1250 and the Late Middle Ages 1250 1500 3 After talking about each phase separately it brings findings together in a conclusion answering the initial question Due to the limits of this essay it will deal with the question from an economic point of view exclusively 1 See en wikipedia org wiki Middle_Ages Periodization_issues 2 See www answers com topic dark_ages 3 See en wikipedia org wiki Middle_Ages Periodization_issues
