Charles Jencks, 1980 Candy and Ice Cream, 1915 Invented Worlds Ellen Winner, 1982 Cave paintings of our prehistoric ancestors elaborate ritual dances of preliterate tribesmen; long lines at the movies; earnest scribbles of the three-year-old next door: evidence of human preoccupation with art is everywhere and it is overwhelming. But unlike other human universals, language tool use, the family art makes no material contribution to mankind's survival. What impels the artist to the lonely effort at self-expression? What moves the audience to resonate to the work of a master? What accounts for the child's inherent fascination with pictures and stories and songs? These questions are among the deepest we can ask about human nature. Freud deemed some of them forever unanswerable, but modern psychology has made new inroads into these old mysteries. Invented Worlds provides a complete, authoritative account of this progress. Dealing with the three major art forms—painting, music and literature—Ellen Winner shows how the artist fashions a symbolic world that transforms the experience of the observer. She probes the adult's ability to create and respond to works of art. In addition, she examines children's art for what it can reveal about the artistic impulse before adult convention becomes a shaping force. Finally, in order to reach a better understanding of the biological bases of artistry, Winner discusses the art of the mentally disturbed and the neurologically impaired patient. The sum of these discussions is more than an up-to-date handbook to the field; it is nothing less than a new synthesis of our understanding of man's artistic nature. Written with admirable clarity, Invented Worlds is a book that can be used by professionals and students in psychology, education and the arts, as well as anyone with reason to be curious about the processes that underlie the creation and enjoyment of art. Emblems: Teacher's guide, 1983

Tracing the Sign of the Cross Marian Ronan, 2009 Following World War II millions of U.S. Catholics were poised to attain the American dream while at Vatican Council II the liberal vision of the church seemed finally to triumph Yet by the end of the twentieth century American Catholicism was in crisis plagued by grave ideological divisions a dwindling pool of priests nuns and monks and declining financial resources What went wrong In Tracing the Sign of the Cross Marian Ronan identifies the roots of this crisis in an inability on the part of American Catholics to mourn a variety of losses suffered in the last third of the twentieth century Drawing on the work of four writers with distinctively Catholic imaginations Ronan argues that endless battles over sexuality and gender in particular have kept American Catholics from confronting these losses thus jeopardizing the future of Catholicism The writings of James Carroll the archetypal liberal American Catholic form the basis of Ronan's exploration of the church in the decades following Vatican II Carroll's writings especially his memoir An American Requiem seem to embody the very engagement with loss Ronan calls for yet a highly gendered pattern of resistance to mourning emerges throughout Carroll's writing Ronan discerns a similar Catholic inability to mourn in the early works of the novelist Mary Gordon the feminist philosopher of science Donna Haraway and the essayist Richard Rodriguez While Gordon's characters gradually engage their profound losses Haraway's female cyborg dons a crown of thorns and Rodriguez confronts his own gay brown identity contributing in all cases to a new and chastened vision of the church Framed by the author's own personal experience Tracing the Sign of the Cross is an intimate and persuasive account of Catholic possibility in a postmodern world
