

A photograph showing the internal components of a washing machine. The central feature is a large, light-colored cylindrical drum. Below the drum, various mechanical parts are visible, including a motor assembly on the left, a drive pulley on the right, and several rollers. Red arrows point from text labels to specific parts: two arrows point to rollers on the drum's rim, one points to a roller on the drum's side, and another points to a pulley on the right. A red box highlights the motor assembly on the left, with an arrow pointing to it from the label 'Quemador'.
