

The Max-Pak Difference

Since 1976, Max-Pak has been making quality balers and compactors for the waste industry. It was something we had to do. You see, we're also in the waste paper recycling business, and 32 years ago we couldn't find a baler that performed the way we needed. So we built our own.

Being in the waste business has its advantages when you're designing a baler. Not only do we understand the challenges and demands expected from a baler, we get to test and fine tune our ideas in a real working environment — our own.

For our other baler customers, it means they get the benefit of our front-line experience and our determination to build only the best. A Max-Pak baler is not good enough for our customers unless it's good enough for us.

At Max-Pak we take a personal interest in every machine we sell, and every customer we serve. It comes from our small town heritage. It's who we are. So it also makes sense that we deliver and install every baler ourselves, and then train your operators before we leave. We want you to be a friend and a Max-Pak customer for a long time. That's part of our small town, small company mentality.

But make no mistake. Max-Pak is no lightweight when it comes to balers. You'll find our equipment in some of the most demanding industries, with some of the most particular companies.

Our customers have come to know and trust Max-Pak for productivity, reliability, and integrity. So it's no surprise that over 90% of all Max-Pak balers ever built are still on the job. And we plan to keep it that way.
